

Contents

List of Illustrations	x
Preface	xii
Acknowledgments	xix
 Part I Remapping the Geohistory of Cityspace	 1
Introduction	3
Outlining the Geohistory of Cityspace	4
Defining the Conceptual Framework	6
The spatial specificity of urbanism	7
The trialectics of cityspace	10
Synekism: the stimulus of urban agglomeration	12
The regionality of cityspace	16
 1 Putting Cities First	 19
Re-excavating the Origins of Urbanism	19
The conventional sequence: hunting and gathering – agriculture – villages – cities – states	20
A provocative inversion: putting cities first	24
Learning from Jericho	27
Learning from Çatal Hüyük	36
James Mellaart and the urban Neolithic	36
Learning from New Obsidian	42
Learning more from Çatal Hüyük	46
 2 The Second Urban Revolution	 50
The New Urbanization	51
Space, Knowledge, and Power in Sumeria	55
Ur and the New Urbanism	60
Fast Forward >> to the Third Urban Revolution	67
 3 The Third Urban Revolution: Modernity and	 71
Urban-industrial Capitalism	71
Cityspace and the Succession of Modernities	72

The Rise of the Modern Industrial Metropolis	76
Made in Manchester	78
Remade in Chicago	84
4 Metropolis in Crisis	95
Rehearsing the Break: the Urban Crisis of the 1960s	95
Manuel Castells and the Urban Question	100
David Harvey's Social Justice and the City	105
Summarizing the Geohistory of Capitalist Cityspace	109
5 An Introduction to the Conurbation of Greater Los Angeles	117
Los Angeles – from Space: A View from My Window	120
A Perpetual Alternation Between Vision and its Forgetting	121
1870–1900: the WASPing of Los Angeles	123
1900–1920: the Regressive–Progressive Era	127
1920–1940: roaring from war to war	129
1940–1970: the Big Orange explodes	131
Looking back to the future: Los Angeles in 1965	135
1970 and beyond: the New Urbanization	140
Part II Six Discourses on the Postmetropolis	145
Introduction	147
Border Dialogues: Previewing the Postmetropolitan Discourses	147
Conceptualizing the New Urbanization Processes	148
Grounding the Discourses	154
6 The Postfordist Industrial Metropolis: Restructuring the Geopolitical Economy of Urbanism	156
Representative Texts	156
Pathways into Urban Worlds of Production	157
The geographical anatomy of industrial urbanism	157
Production-work-territory: reworking the divisions of labor	160
Manufacturing matters: against postindustrial sociology	164
Crossing industrial divides	166
Post-ford-ism	169
The empowerment of flexibility	171
Getting lean and mean: the surge in inequality	173
Into the regional world: the rediscovery of synekism	175
Localizing Industrial Urbanism	180
Postfordist industrial cartographies	181
Developmental dynamics of the industrial complex	185
Concluding in the realm of public policy	187

7 Cosmopolis: The Globalization of Cityspace	189
Representative Texts	189
Recomposing the Discourse on Globalization	191
The globality of production and the production of globality	192
Regional worlds of globalization	197
New geographies of power	202
Adding culture to the global geopolitical economy	208
The reconstruction of social meaning in the space of flows	212
Globalized neoliberalism: a brief note	216
Metropolis Unbound: Conceptualizing Globalized Cityspace	218
The world city hypothesis	219
Commanding our attention: the rise of global cities	222
Urban dualism, the Informational City and the urban-regional process	227
The turn to cosmopolis	229
8 Exopolis: The Restructuring of Urban Form	233
Representative Texts	233
Metropolis Transformed	234
Megacities and metropolitan galaxies	235
Outer Cities, postsuburbia, and the end of the Metropolis Era	238
Edge Cities and the optimistic envisioning of postmetropolitan geographies	243
City Lite and postmetropolitan nostalgia	246
Simulating the New Urbanism	248
Exopolis as synthesis	250
Representing the Exopolis in Los Angeles	251
Starting in the New Downtown	251
Inner City blues	254
The middle landscape	258
Off-the-edge cities	259
9 Fractal City: Metropolarities and the Restructured Social Mosaic	264
Representative Texts	264
Manufacturing Inequality in the Postmetropolis	266
Normalizing inequality: the extremes at both ends	267
Variations on the theme of intrinsic causality	268
Describing metropolarities: empirical sociologies and labor market dynamics	272
Moving beyond equality politics	279
Remapping the Fractal City of Los Angeles	282
An overview of the ethnic mosaic	283
Mono-ethnic geographies: segregating cityspace	291
Multicultural geographies: mapping diversity	294

10 The Carceral Archipelago: Governing Space in the Postmetropolis	298
Representative Texts	298
Conceptualizing the Carceral Archipelago	299
Fortress L.A. and the rhetoric of social warfare	300
The destruction of public space and the architectonics of security-obsessed urbanism	303
Policing space: doing time in Los Angeles	307
Entering the Forbidden City: the imprisonment of Downtown	309
Homegrown Revolution: HOAs, CIDs, gated communities, and insular lifestyles	312
Beyond the Blade Runner scenario: the spatial restructuring of urban governmentality	319
11 Simcities: Restructuring the Urban Imaginary	323
Representative Texts	323
Re-imagining Cityspace: Travels in Hyperreality	324
Jean Baudrillard and the precession of simulacra	326
Celeste Olalquiaga and postmodern psychasthenia	330
Cyberspace and the electronic generation of hyperreality	333
M. Christine Boyer and the imaginary real world of Cybercities	337
Simcities, Simcitizens, and hyperreality-generated crisis	339
SimAmerica: a concluding critique	345
Part III Lived Space: Rethinking 1992 in Los Angeles	349
Introduction	351
12 LA 1992: Overture to a Conclusion	355
Revisionings	355
Bodies, Cities, Texts: The Case of Citizen Rodney King (by Barbara Hooper)	359
Inscriptions	359
Somatography: the order in place	361
The Trial: Us v. Them	368
13 LA 1992: The Spaces of Representation	372
Event-Geography-Remembering	372
Visible antipodes: Inner versus Outer City	373
Normalized enclosures: the development of common interests	376
The Invisible Riots Remembered	379
Downtowns: this is not the 1960s	379
Pico-Union and the desaparecidos	386
Sa-i-ku and other commemorations	389
A repetitive ending	392

14 Postscript: Critical Reflections on the Postmetropolis	396
New Beginnings I: Postmetropolis in Crisis	396
The downturn of postfordism	397
Too fulsome globalization?	399
Suddenly everywhere is Pomona	401
Repadded white bunkers	402
Deconstructed modes of regulation	403
Simgovernment in crisis	405
New Beginnings II: Struggles for Spatial Justice and Regional Democracy	407
 Bibliography	 416
 Name Index	 431
 Subject Index	 436