

Contents

Introduction: Phenomenology's Methodological Invitation	1
Kalpana Ram and Christopher Houston

Part I. The Body as Constitutive Horizon of Experience

1 Moods and Method: Heidegger and Merleau-Ponty on Emotion and Understanding	29
Kalpana Ram
2 Toward a Cultural Phenomenology of Body-World Relations	50
Thomas J. Csordas
3 Sacred Suffering: A Phenomenological Anthropological Perspective	68
C. Jason Throop
4 Being "Sita": Physical Affects in the North Indian Dance of Kathak	90
Monica Dalidowicz
5 Beneath the Horizon: The Organic Body's Role in Athletic Experience	114
Greg Downey
6 Unmeasured Music and Silence	138
Ian Bedford

Part II. History and Temporality

7 Experiencing Self-Abstraction: Studio Production and Vocal Consciousness	153
Daniel Fisher
8 Being-in-the-Covenant: Reflections on the Crisis of Historicism in North Malaita, Solomon Islands	175
Jaap Timmer

Part III. The Poetics and Politics of Phenomenological Ethnography

9 Seared with Reality: Phenomenology through Photography, in Nepal	197
Robert Desjarlais

10	Writing Affect, Love, and Desire into Ethnography L. L. Wynn	224
11	Senses of Magic: Anthropology, Art, and Christianity in the Vula'a Lifeworld Deborah Van Heekeren	248
12	Neither Things in Themselves nor Things for Us Only: Anthropology, Phenomenology, and Poetry Christopher Houston	268
	Afterword Michael Jackson	293
	Contributors	305
	Index	308