

Contents

Introduction 1

*Qwo-Li Driskill, Chris Finley, Brian Joseph Gilley, and
Scott Lauria Morgensen*

Section I: Performing Queer Indigenous Critiques

- 1 Decolonizing the Queer Native Body (and Recovering the Native Bull-Dyke): Bringing “Sexy Back” and Out of Native Studies’ Closet 31
Chris Finley
- 2 Queer Theory and Native Studies: The Heteronormativity of Settler Colonialism 43
Andrea Smith
- 3 A Queer Caste: Mixing Race and Sexuality in Colonial New Zealand 66
Michelle Erai
- 4 Fa’afafine Notes: On Tagaloa, Jesus, and Nafanua 81
Dan Taulapapa McMullin

Section II: Situating Two-Spirit and Queer Indigenous Movements

- 5 D4Y D3C (Asegi Ayetl): Cherokee Two-Spirit People Reimagining Nation 97
Qwo-Li Driskill
- 6 Exploring Takatapui Identity within the Maori Community: Implications for Health and Well-Being 113
Clive Aspin
- 7 Two-Spirit Men’s Sexual Survivance against the Inequality of Desire 123
Brian Joseph Gilley

- 8 Unsettling Queer Politics: What Can Non-Natives Learn from Two-Spirit Organizing? 132
Scott Lauria Morgensen

Section III: Reading Queer Indigenous Writing

- 9 Indigenous Fantasies and Sovereign Erotics: Outland Cherokees Write Two-Spirit Nations 155
Lisa Tattonetti
- 10 The Erotics of Sovereignty 172
Mark Rifkin
- 11 Gifts of Maskihkiy: Gregory Scofield's Cree Métis Stories of Self-Acceptance 190
June Scudeler
- 12 The Revolution Is for Everyone: Imagining an Emancipatory Future through Queer Indigenous Critical Theories 211
Qwo-Li Driskill, Chris Finley, Brian Joseph Gilley, and Scott Lauria Morgensen

Works Cited 223

About the Contributors 239

Index 243