

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Common Abbreviations	ix
Contributors	xi
Introduction—JOHN MAKEHAM	I
PART 1: The Indian and Japanese Roots of Yogācāra
1. Yogācāra: Indian Buddhist Origins—JOHN POWERS	41
2. Indra's Network: Zhang Taiyan's Sino-Japanese Personal Networks and the Rise of Yogācāra in Modern China—JOHN JORGENSEN	64
PART 2: Early Appropriations
3. Tan Sitong's "Great Unity": Mental Processes and Yogācāra in An Exposition of Benevolence —SCOTT PACEY	103
4. Equality as Reification: Zhang Taiyan's Yogācāra Reading of Zhuangzi in the Context of Global Modernity—VIREN MURTHY	123
PART 3: Yogācāra and Modern Science
5. Taixu, Yogācāra, and the Buddhist Approach to Modernity—SCOTT PACEY	149

6. Yogācāra and Science in the 1920s: The Wuchang School's Approach to Modern Mind Science—ERIK J. HAMMERSTROM 170

PART 4: Yogācāra and Confucian Thought

7. Liang Shuming and His Confucianized Version of Yogācāra—THIERRY MEYNARD 201
8. Xiong Shili's Critique of Yogācāra Thought in the Context of His Constructive Philosophy—JOHN MAKEHAM 242

PART 5: The Return to "Genuine Buddhism"

9. Ouyang Jingwu: From Yogācāra Scholasticism to Soteriology—EYAL AVIV 285
10. Lü Cheng, Epistemology, and Genuine Buddhism—DAN LUSTHAUS 317
11. The Uncompromising Quest for Genuine Buddhism:
Lü Cheng's Critique of Original Enlightenment—CHEN-KUO LIN 343

PART 6: Dénouement

12. Chinese Ressentiment and Why New Confucians Stopped
Caring about Yogācāra—JASON CLOWER 377
- Glossary* 413
- Index* 415