

Contents

List of Illustrations	viii
Acknowledgements	ix
List of Abbreviations	x
Introduction. Futuremaking with Pastoralists Echi Christina Gabbert	1
Part I. Setting the Context: Modernity and Citizenship in Pastoral Areas
Chapter 1. Modern Mobility in East Africa: Pastoral Responses to Rangeland Fragmentation, Enclosure and Settlement John G. Galaty	41
Chapter 2. Unequal Citizenship and One-Sided Communication: Anthropological Perspectives on Collective Identification in the Context of Large-Scale Land Transfers in Ethiopia Günther Schlee	59
Chapter 3. Global Trade, Local Realities: Why African States Undervalue Pastoralism Peter D. Little	78

Part II. Contested Identities and Territories: A History of Expropriation

- Chapter 4. Modes of Dispossession of Indigenous Lands and Territories
in Africa 99
Elifuraha I. Laltaika and Kelly M. Askew
- Chapter 5. Land and the State in Ethiopia 123
John Markakis
- Chapter 6. Persistent Expropriation of Pastoral Lands: The Afar Case 144
Maknun Ashami and Jean Lydall

Part III. Power, Politics and Reactions to State-Building

- Chapter 7. Anatomy of a White Elephant: Investment Failure and Land Conflicts on Ethiopia's Oromia–Somali Frontier 167
Jonah Wedekind
- Chapter 8. From Cattle Herding to Charcoal Burning: Land
Expropriation, State Consolidation and Livelihood Changes in Abaya Valley, Southern Ethiopia 189
Asebe Regassa
- Chapter 9. Villagization in Ethiopia's Lowlands: Development
vs. Facilitating Control and Dispossession 210
Fana Gebresenbet

Part IV. Underdeveloping South Omo

- Chapter 10. 'Breaking Every Rule in the Book': The Story of River
Basin Development in Ethiopia's Omo Valley 231
David Turton
- Chapter 11. State-Building in the Ethiopian South-Western Lowlands:
Experiencing the Brunt of State Power in Mela 249
Lucie Buffavand
- Chapter 12. Customary Land Use and Local Consent Practices in Mun (Mursi): A New Call for Meaningful FPIC Standards in Southern Ethiopia 268
Shauna LaTosky
- Chapter 13. Ethiopia's 'Blue Oil'? Hydropower, Irrigation and Development in the Omo-Turkana Basin 292
Edward G.J. Stevenson and Benedikt Kamski

Conclusion. Pastoralists for Future	309
Echi Christina Gabbert, Fana Gebresenbet and Jonah Wedekind
Glossary	318
Index	321

Acknowledgments

This volume is dedicated to our pastoralist and agro-pastoralist friends and allies. To them go our deepest thanks and gratitude, not merely for welcoming us in their homes and hosting us in their communities but also for their teaching, challenging and inspiring us in ways that no university in the world could. We thus share how this knowledge is faithfully reflected in the work presented here.

We wish to convey our appreciation to the institutions in which we are affiliated and which have supported our research and writing.

Our research was supported by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada, the International Development Research Centre and the Institutional Canopy of Conservation partnership project, funded by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council and the International Development Research Centre.

We are also indebted to our colleagues who shared the world with us. Our research was supported by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada, the International Development Research Centre and the Institutional Canopy of Conservation partnership project, funded by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council and the International Development Research Centre.

We are also indebted to our colleagues who shared the world with us. Our research was supported by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada, the International Development Research Centre and the Institutional Canopy of Conservation partnership project, funded by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council and the International Development Research Centre.

We are also indebted to our colleagues who shared the world with us. Our research was supported by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada, the International Development Research Centre and the Institutional Canopy of Conservation partnership project, funded by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council and the International Development Research Centre.