

CONTENTS

1	Why Should Sociology Concern Itself with Space?	1
2	Notions of Space in Context	9
2.1	Absolutist and Relativist Notions of Space	15
2.2	Sociology of Space	24
2.2.1	Giddens, Hägerstrand, and the Power Container	26
2.2.2	Urban Sociology Without Space	32
2.2.3	Simmel and Form	43
2.3	First Interim Conclusion	48
3	Changes in Spatial Phenomena	55
3.1	Space in Processes of Education and Socialization	58
3.1.1	Insularized Socialization	65
3.1.2	Spatial Imagination and Gender	72
3.2	Virtual Spaces	75
3.3	Globalization and Global Cities	82
3.4	Second Interim Conclusion	86
3.5	The Test Case: Body Spaces	91
4	Toward a Sociological Concept of Space	105
5	The Constitution of Space	129
5.1	The Bodies of the Constitution of Space	130

xxv

5.2	The Development of Space in Interaction Between Action and Structures	134
5.2.1	Spacing and the Operation of Synthesis	134
5.2.2	Repetitiveness of Everyday Life	136
5.2.3	Spatial Structures	141
5.2.4	Gender and Class	146
	Excursus: Bourdieu and Space	151
5.2.5	Deviation and Change	155
5.2.6	Symbolism and Materiality	161
5.2.7	Perception	164
5.3	Localization of Spaces at Places	167
5.4	The Visibility of the Invisibility of Space	171
5.5	Space and Social Inequality	177
5.6	Methodological Consequences	183
5.7	Summary View of the Constitution of Space	188
6	Exemplary Analyses	197
6.1	Countercultural School Spaces	198
6.2	Gender-Specific Spaces	210
6.3	Urban Spaces	216
7	Foundations of a Sociology of Space—Summary	225
7.1	Social Changes	226
7.2	Sociological Ideas of Space	230
7.3	Sociology of Space in Eight Theses	232
	References	235
	Index	283