

Mark Breusers

ON THE MOVE

Mobility, Land Use and Livelihood Practices
on the Central Plateau in Burkina Faso

---

LIT

TABLE OF CONTENTS

The Euro-African Association for the Anthropology of Social Change and Development (APAD)	vii
Foreword by Norman Long	xi
Preface	xv

Chapter One

Introduction: Land Use Practice, Mobility and Environmental Degradation

Introduction	3
The research setting	5
Sustainable land use: the ‘necessity’ of an intensification of production systems	11
Research theme: the interplay between changing land use practices and changing processes of geographic mobility	15
Processes of geographic mobility and the production of locality	18
Methodological approach	23
Synopsis	35

Chapter Two

The establishment of a chieftaincy: issues of geographic mobility and land in a historical perspective

Introduction	41
The history of the Moogo: multiple accounts of the past	42
Early settlement and incorporation in the Moogo	45
Diversity of actors and projects involved in the expansion of the Piugtenga kombere	52
The silent history of Pullo presence	77
‘Modern’ migrations versus ‘traditional’ processes of geographic mobility?	82

Chapter Three

Lineage lands as structuring spatial structures

Introduction	89
Tengpeelem : the promise of a territory	91
'Village territories' as aggregations of yaab ziinse	96
Dominant discourse: the exclusivity of autochthonousness	101
The inclusiveness of alternative discourses and the superposition of claims	106
Wandering Saaba and Fulbe	114
Summary and conclusion	121

Chapter Four

Geographic mobility and strategies for securing and extending claims on land

Introduction	127
1900-1945: The height of colonial repression	128
Fission of the tengbiise compounds of Yiitaoore during colonial repression	134
Recent and present day land use strategies	139
Discussion and conclusion	171

Chapter Five:

Marriage and related processes of geographic mobility and rights to land

Introduction	183
The development cycle of domestic groups: members' rights to land and access to labour	184
Fosterage and redistribution of labour	189
Mother's brother and sister's son	194
Land loans to sister's sons in neighbouring villages	200
Misfortune and movement to mother's brother	202
Nature of rights to land with mother's brother	204
Friendship	208
Concluding remarks	210

Chapter Six*Changing patterns and meaning of migration to the Ivory Coast: from disruption to 're-solidarisation'?

Introduction	215
The constitution of a 'free labour market' under colonial rule	216
Labour migration in the 1950s: disruption of social organisation?	232
Individual-centred migration in the 1960s and 1970s	241
Contemporary migration management	249
Conclusions	283

Chapter Seven*Migration and the diversification of livelihood practices - Migration to the south and west of Burkina Faso

Introduction: the persistence of evolutionary thinking	291
Migration to the Ivory Coast: some additional observations regarding kinship	294
Migration to the south and west of Burkina Faso: introductory remarks	297
Migration to the south and west of Burkina Faso from the village of Ziinoogo	303
Concluding remarks	322

Chapter Eight*Socio-economic differentiation, cattle and inter-ethnic relationships

Introduction	327
Migration revenues and remittances, their use and investment	329
Socio-economic differentiation and the accumulation of wealth	331
Animal husbandry in the village of Ziinoogo	337
Relations between Moose and Fulbe: from symbiosis to polarisation?	342
Differentiation and identity	363

Chapter Nine

Conclusions

Geographic mobility and the opening up of new frontiers	381
Geographic mobility, neighbourhood and locality	384
Geographic mobility, land tenure arrangements and land use intensification	388
The articulation of agriculture and animal husbandry and inter-ethnic relations	392
Glossary	399
Archive documents	403
References	409