

Cultures of Ageing

Self, citizen and the body

CHRIS GILLEARD

and

PAUL HIGGS

An imprint of Pearson Education

Harlow, England · London · New York · Reading, Massachusetts · San Francisco
Toronto · Don Mills, Ontario · Sydney · Tokyo · Singapore · Hong Kong · Seoul
Taipei · Cape Town · Madrid · Mexico City · Amsterdam · Munich · Paris · Milan

CONTENTS

Preface ix

Acknowledgements xi

1 Introduction 1

Cultural studies and ageing 2

'Postmodernity' and cultural fragmentation 4

The centrality of ageing 7

Notes 10

2 From political economy to the culture of personal identity 12

The rise and fall of structured dependency theory 13

Structured dependency theory in the UK 15

Ageing in America 19

From political economy to moral economy 20

The cultural turn 22

Notes 25

3 Retirement, identity and consumer society 28

Social identities and postmodern culture 29

Self-identity and the blurring of retirement 31

The state, retirement policy and the economic structure of later life 33

Third-age identities and post-work society 38

Class, cohort and retirement 42

Gender and retirement 45

Ageing in private: the role of family in suppressing/repressing later life identities 51

Notes 52

4 Identity, self-care and staying young	59
Self-definition and the technologies of the self	59
Anti-ageing: resisting change by embracing the new	64
Technologies of the self and personal care	67
Age identity and the politics of the self	70
Age, sex and power	72
Men and women and the postmodern menopause	75
Fit to face down ageing: exercise and the work-out	78
Age, identity and the 'experience society'	81
Notes	84
5 The old person as citizen	90
T.H. Marshall and all that	91
The state, status and citizenship	95
Grey capitalism and the role of pension funds	99
Citizenship and governmentality	101
Notes	105
6 Senior citizenship and contemporary social policy	107
Citizens, stakeholders and pension policies	108
Community care: the clientization of citizenship	111
Long-term institutional care: choice and social exclusion	115
Senior citizenship – avoiding closure	120
Notes	123
7 Ageing and its embodiment	126
Embodiment and social theory	126
The body as the 'true' foundation of ageing: confronting physicality	129
Anti-ageing and the aesthetics of the body	131
Ageism: the personal and the public	134
Ageing: appearance, reality and then some	141
Notes	143
8 Bio-ageing and the reproduction of the social	148
Secular changes in late-life mortality and morbidity	150
Natural lifespan and the prolongation of life	153

Ageing and impoverishment	155
Bodily ageing: emergence or submergence of elites?	160
Seeking, not setting, limits	161
Notes	163

9 Ageing, Alzheimer's and the uncivilized body 168

Elias and the civilized body	169
The post-war transformation of senility	173
The branding of Alzheimer's and the scientific approach	175
Alzheimer's and the state	179
Alzheimer's – from need to risk	181
Alzheimer's, personhood and the re-civilizing of senility	184
Alzheimer's and sustainable ageing	187
Notes	188

10 The inevitability of the cultural turn in ageing studies 193

The implications of our argument for ageing studies	194
Opening ageing out	195
The cultural divide: third-age and fourth-age futures	197
Yes, but . . . addressing potential criticisms	200
Notes	207

11 Concluding comments 209

Note	212
------	-----

Index	213
-------	-----