

Formal Pragmatics

Semantics, Pragmatics, Presupposition, and Focus

Nirit Kadmon

Contents

Acknowledgments	x
Introduction	1
1 Preliminaries	3
1.1 Semantics and Pragmatics	3
1.2 Conversational Implicatures	4
1.3 Metalinguistic Negation	8
1.4 Contexts and Common Grounds	8
1.5 Presuppositions	10
1.6 Presuppositions and Context-Dependent Interpretation	15
1.7 Accommodation	17
 Part One Dynamic Semantics, Definites, and Indefinites
2 Discourse Representation Theory and File Change Semantics	25
2.1 Introduction to DRT and FCS	25
2.1.1 Motivation	25
2.1.2 Summary of Main Features	27
2.1.3 Kamp's DRT	28
2.1.4 Heim's FCS	40
2.2 DRT and FCS	51
2.3 The Formal Theory	63
2.3.1 The Formal Language DRL	63
2.3.2 Contexts and Context Change Potentials	65
2.3.3 Adding Discourse Referents Representing Sets into DRL	67
3 NPs with Numeral Determiners	68
3.1 NPs with Numeral Determiners	68
3.2 About the Notion of "The Pragmatic Wastebasket"	75
4 Semantics and Pragmatics with Definite NPs	77
4.1 The Existential Presupposition of Definite NPs: Definites as Anaphoric	77
4.2 The Uniqueness of Definite NPs	79

4.2.1	The Uniqueness/Maximality of Definite NPs	79
4.2.2	Opposition to Uniqueness	80
4.2.3	Realistic Uniqueness: Data	83
4.2.4	Cooper's Analysis and Remaining Challenges	86
4.2.5	The Proposed Analysis	88
4.2.6	Uniqueness is Presupposed	95
4.3	On the File/DRS as a Representation of the Context of Utterance	97
4.4	Salience and the Geography of the Context of Utterance	98
4.5	Referential and Attributive Definites: Formalizing "Salience"	102
4.5.1	Data	103
4.5.2	Analysis	104
4.5.3	Formulation	108

Part Two Presupposition

5	Presupposition Projection: The Basic Analysis	115
5.1	Data	115
5.2	The Stalnaker-Karttunen Analysis	119
5.3	Things Missing in the Stalnaker-Karttunen Analysis	123
5.4	Some Remarks on Karttunen and Peters 1979	125
5.5	Heim's Analysis (Part 1): "Content" and "Heritage" Combined	127
6	Presupposition Projection: Filtering vs. Cancellation	132
6.1	The Cancellation Approach to ps Projection	133
6.2	Critique of the Cancellation Approach	136
6.3	On the Filtering + Cancellation Synthesis	139
7	Presupposition Projection: Interlude	143
8	Presupposition Projection: Negation, Shifts in Contextual Assumptions, and Metalinguistic Operators	145
8.1	Shifts in Contextual Assumptions	145
8.2	Lexical "Hole" vs. "Plug" Ambiguities?	146
8.3	Presupposition and Metalinguistic Operators	149
9	Presupposition Projection and Accommodation	151
9.1	"Linguistic" vs. "Cognitive" Presupposition	151
9.2	Local Accommodation as Responsible for ps "Disappearance"	152
9.2.1	Heim's Analysis (Part 2): negation with global and local accommodation	152
9.2.2	ps "Disappearance" and Local Accommodation: a compound sentence with conflicting pss, and further cases	156
9.3	Modal Subordination: ps Satisfaction in Intensional Contexts	156
9.3.1	Preliminaries: quantification over possible worlds	156
9.3.2	Preliminaries: satisfaction of ps	160
9.3.3	The Problem	160
9.3.4	Entailment-based Account?	160
9.3.5	Roberts' Analysis: local accommodation of restrictions	160
9.3.6	Appendix: restrictions accommodated in further examples	160
9.4	On the Status of Accommodation, Local and Global	170

10	More on ps Projection and Accommodation: ps Projection Below the Level of the Clause	175
	10.1 Introduction	175
	10.2 Existential Statements	176
	10.2.1 Some Unproblematic Existential Statements	176
	10.2.2 Our Problem in Existential Statements	178
	10.2.3 Intuitions	179
	10.2.4 Heim's Analysis (Part 3): existential statements	181
	10.2.5 Beaver: Existential Statements Without Accommodation which is Local in Sense #1?	183
	10.3 Quantified Statements	190
	10.3.1 Some Unproblematic Quantified Statements	190
	10.3.2 Our Problem in Quantified Statements	191
	10.3.3 Intuitions	192
	10.3.4 Heim's Analysis (Part 4): quantified statements	196
	10.3.5 Beaver: quantified statements without local accommodation?	202
	10.4 Conclusion	204
11	Presupposition Triggering and the Behavior of Presuppositions	205
	11.1 Conventional Triggering vs. Conversational Triggering	205
	11.2 Some Fairly Clear Examples of Conversationally-Triggered pss	209
	11.3 ps Triggering and ps Projection	212
	11.4 ps Triggering and the "ps Property"	217
	11.5 Factive pss	218
	11.6 ps "Disappearance" in Simple Affirmative Examples	220
	11.7 Conclusion	222
Part Three Focus
12	Some Basics of the Phonology of Prosody	227
	12.1 Stress	227
	12.2 Intonation	230
	12.3 On the Separate Existence of Stress Patterns	241
	12.4 Intonation and Stress	243
13	Focus and Focus Identification	250
	13.1 The Notion of "Focus" to be Discussed in this Book	250
	13.2 Some Phenomena: Pragmatic and Semantic Effects of Focus	253
	13.2.1 Discourse Congruence	253
	13.2.2 The Focal Presupposition	254
	13.2.3 Focusing Adverbs	256
	13.2.4 Modals, Adverbs of Quantification, Generics: focus-sensitive quantification	257
	13.2.5 Reasons	258
	13.2.6 Negation	259
	13.2.7 Superlatives	260
	13.2.8 Bare Remnant Ellipsis and VP Anaphora	260
	13.2.9 Scalar Implicatures	260
	13.2.10 Sentence-Internal Contrasting Phrases	261
	13.3 Focus and Question-Answer Pairs	261
	13.4 Focus and Pitch Accents	263

13.4.1	Focus is Marked by the Presence of Pitch Accents in it	263
13.4.2	The Right-End Hypothesis	266
13.4.3	Focus Identification and the Role(s) of Pitch Accents	268
13.4.4	Specific Hypotheses about Marking by Pitch Accents	273
13.4.4.1	Ladd: accentability and "deaccenting"	273
13.4.4.2	Selkirk: accenting and argument structure	276
13.4.5	The Emerging Picture	282
13.5	Focus, Prosodic Phrasing, and Peripheral Tones	286
14	Focus: Focus-Induced Interpretations	288
14.1	Focus-Induced Interpretations	288
14.2	Structured Meanings	290
14.3	Alternative Semantics	291
14.4	Deriving Focus-Induced Interpretations	292
14.5	Formalization	293
14.5.1	Some Assumptions and some Desiderata	293
14.5.2	The Language L	295
14.5.3	Focus Interpretation – a Start	297
14.5.4	Alternative Semantics	298
14.5.5	Structured Meanings	300
14.6	What is Needed Next?	302
15	Problems with Focus-Induced Interpretations	303
15.1	The Usual (Limited) Success with Intensionality	303
15.2	Things That Only Should Not Exclude	305
15.3	Schwarzschild's General Problem with Defining Sets of Alternatives in Terms of Full Semantic Domains	307
15.4	Conclusions re Choice of Focus-Induced Interpretation?	309
16	Association with Focus: The "Domain Selection"/"Free Parameter" Analysis	311
17	Focus: The More Complete Analysis	315
17.1	Introduction	315
17.2	The Optionality of Focus Effects	316
17.3	The Focus Interpretation Principle (Rooth 1992)	317
17.4	Some Related Issues	326
17.4.1	The FIP and the Focal ps	326
17.4.2	The "Strong Hypothesis" Regarding Focus Effects	328
17.5	Minimize Focused Material	329
17.6	Focus as a Discourse-Regulating Device: Introduction	330
17.7	The Obligatoriness of Focus Effects	331
17.8	Focus as a Discourse-Regulating Device: The Contrast Constraint (Schwarzschild 1994, 1997)	334
17.9	Questions and Information Structure in Discourse (Roberts 1996b)	339
17.10	Focus as a Discourse-Regulating Device: The Question-Under-Discussion Constraint (Roberts 1996b)	347
17.11	Conclusion	356

18	Focus-Induced Interpretations: Some Theoretical Choices to be Made	356
18.1	Focus-Induced Interpretations of Constituents Other Than a Clause?	356
18.1.1	Only as an NP or VP Modifier	356
18.1.2	Sentence-Internal Contrasting Phrases	362
18.2	Recursive Definition of Focus-Induced Interpretations?	363
18.3	Co-Variation in Focus Positions?	365
19	Focus and Scope	367
19.1	The "Pure Scope" Theory of Focus	367
19.2	The "Focus-Induced Interpretations + Scope" Theory	369
19.2.1	From "Pure Scope" to "Focus-Induced Interpretations + Scope"	369
19.2.2	Crossover Effects	371
19.2.3	Absence of Island Effects	373
19.3	Do Foci Take Wide Scope? (Part 1)	374
20	Complex Focal Structures with "Contrastive Topics"	380
20.1	TOPIC-Focus and FOCUS-Focus	380
20.2	Recent Accounts	382
20.2.1	Roberts 1996b	382
20.2.2	Büring 1999	384
20.3	My Account	388
20.4	Do Foci Take Wide Scope? (Part 2)	397
21	Focus and Presupposition: The Focal Presupposition and its Interaction with Other Presuppositions	402
21.1	The Focal Presupposition	402
21.1.1	Summary of the View Presented Above	402
21.1.2	Further Considerations	403
21.2	Focus and the "Disappearance" of Presuppositions	406
21.3	Focus and "Altered" Presuppositions	408
	References	415
	Index	423