

CONTENTS

Preface	ix
BOOK ONE THE HISTORICAL FRAMEWORK FOR AMERICA'S DUALITY
1 Introduction	3
2 The colonialist heritage and the plural society	15
3 The dual processes of colonialization and colonization: The English in Virginia	36
4 Duality and the transformation of the thirteen colonies into a federated nation-state	70
5 The American Indian and the frontier	116
BOOK TWO THE BLACK ENCOUNTER WITH AMERICA'S DUALITY
6 From slavery to entry into the People's Domain and the first period of reconstruction	157
7 The dual plural societies: Jim Crowism in the South and racial segmentation in the North	215
8 The second period of reconstruction and the law	286
9 The second period of reconstruction and executive policy	340
10 The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and the courts	385
11 The resurgent plural society and the civil rights movement in the South	424
12 The de facto plural society and black militance in the North	466

BOOK THREE THE EXTENSION OF DUALITY AND THE ENCOUNTERS OF OTHER RACIAL MINORITIES

Part One	The Chinese-American and the boundaries of the Plural Terrain	567
13	California and the Chinese immigrant	569
14	The federal government, China, and the exclusion acts	609
Part Two	The Japanese-American: From Plural Terrain through the concentration camps to the People's Domain	681
15	California Acts against the Japanese Immigrant and Japan seeks redress	683
16	The yellow peril and the end of the Gentlemen's Agreement	763
17	World War II and the concentration camps	841
18	Postwar metamorphosis: From concentration camp to the People's Domain	908
Part Three	Puerto Rico: From colonial dependency to Commonwealth status	945
19	Puerto Rico as an unincorporated territory: The early years and the struggle over American citizenship	947
20	The quest for self-governance: Independence or Commonwealth status	1029
	Postscript	1098
	Appendix A The Spanish conquistador in the New World	1103
	Appendix B The Dred Scott decision: Territorial status and the Constitution	1110
	References	1115
	Name Index	1138
	Subject Index	1145