

Contents

List of Illustrations	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Preface: The Fear of “French Negroes”	xv
 Introduction: Mobile Culture, Mobilized Politics	 I
1. Canine Warfare in the Circum-Caribbean	21
Cuban Bloodhounds and Transcolonial Terror Networks	23
A Discursive Battle of Wills	38
Culture and Public Memory	44
2. “Une et indivisible?” The Struggle for Freedom in Hispaniola	49
“L’île d’Haiti forme le territoire de la République”: The Early Years of Antislavery Border Politics	52
The Meaning of Freedom	70
Haitian Generals: Ogou Iconography on Both Sides of the Border	74
Guangua pangnol pi fort pasé ouanga haitien	83
3. “Negroes of the Most Desperate Character”: Privateering and Slavery in the Gulf of Mexico	91
Race, Privateering, and the Gulf South in the 1810s	95
To Fight Ably and Valiantly against One’s Own Race	104
The Cultural Afterlives of Impossible Patriots	114

4. French Set Girls and Transcolonial Performance	122
The French Set Girls	125
Reconsidering the Migration of “French” Cultural Capital	132
Embodied Wisdom and Attunement	139
Circum-Caribbean Repercussions of Saint-Domingue	144
Legacies	155
5. “Sentinels on the Watch-Tower of Freedom”: The Black Press of the 1830s and 1840s	157
Periodical Campaigns: Promoting an African Diasporic Literacy Project	161
Class, Migration, and Transcolonial Labor Relations	173
Caribbean Federation: Advancing National Interests through a Regionalist Lens	180
Epilogue	189
Notes	195
Works Consulted and Discography	245
Index	277