

Contents

List of Boxes and Figures	vi
List of Tables	vii
List of Acronyms	viii
Foreword	ix
Preface	xi
Introduction	1
1. Abstract Concepts of Development	9
2. Capability and Human Development	27
3. Towards A Theory of the Good Life	65
4. Perceptions of Development	96
5. Conclusion	162
Annex: Statistics and Questionnaire	167
Part One: Responses to Open Questions	171
Part Two: Responses to Pre-Defined Questions	197
Part Three: The Questionnaire	227
Bibliography	249
Index	269

Boxes

1.1 A Clarification of Some of the Abstract Concepts of Development Employed in Economics and Social Science	22
3.1 A Typology of Human Values and Development Ethics	80

Figures

2.1 From Resources to Functioning – Sen’s Concept of Human Well-Being	35
4.1 The Top 5 Aspects of a ‘Good Life’ in Murraysburg and Wallacedene	105

Tables

2.1 Some Examples of Commodities and Activities, their Characteristics and the Functionings they can help to Facilitate	51
3.1 Nussbaum and Sen's list of 'Functional Capabilities'	71
3.2 The Augmented Theory of the Good	88
4.1 Characteristics of the Survey Sample (Total no. of Respondents)	98
4.2 A Normative Evaluation of Nussbaum and Sen's list of 'Functional Capabilities' and the Augmented Theory of the Good	148
4.3 A Selection of Other Items Nominated as Valuable 'Functional Capabilities'	154