

Contents

List of Abbreviations	8
Preface	9
CHAPTER ONE: Introduction	13
The Research Question	16
Constructing Cultural Space	18
Cultural Strategies of Identity	28
The Study	35
CHAPTER TWO: Redefining Indian Television	49
The Post-Independence Era	49
The Impact of the Image	58
The Post-liberalisation Era	62
Redefining the Image of India	77
CHAPTER THREE: Cultural Strategies of Identity	87
The Modern Individual	87
Cultural Strategies of Identity	93
Redefining Tradition	97
CHAPTER FOUR: Cultural Change in India	111
Redefining Indianness	111
The Continuity and Disjunction of Indian Identity	122
Contesting Indian Identity in a Global World	139

CHAPTER FIVE: Mediating Identity: Transnational Television and Cultural Change	147
Transnational Media Corporation Practice in a Global Era	148
Active Audiences and the Construction of Meaning	152
The Construction of the Local	156
The Impact of Television on Cultural Change in India	163
 CHAPTER SIX: Shifting Cultural Space and the Formation of New Identities	181
The Delineation of Space	181
Boundaries and Limit Images	184
The Compression of Space	189
The Generation of Multiple Identities	195
Orientation at the Point of Comfort	201
 CHAPTER SEVEN: Cleaving India: New Oppositions and Familiarities	209
Space Binding: The Construction of an Immoral West	209
Space Dislocation: The Creation of New Familiarities	214
The 'Chutneyfication of Identity'	227
 CHAPTER EIGHT: India According to Miss World	239
Identity and the Body	240
Miss World 1996	245
A Transgressive Ms	250
 CHAPTER NINE: The Dimensions of Cultural Change	265
Describing Cultural Change	266
The Changing Experience of Space	270
The Impact of Transnational Television	273
Controlling the Direction of Change	276
Contesting the Global/the Local	284
Between Release and Restraint: The Formation of New Subjectivity in India	286
 Appendix I: Summary of Focus Groups	293

Appendix II: First and Second Generation Interviewees	298
Bibliography	304
Index	315
About the Author	323