

Contents

Acknowledgements	viii
Introduction: Sociology and Culture	1
Culture is important	1
Culture is everywhere	4
Defining culture	5
Sociology looks at culture	6
Organization of the book	9
1 Setting Up the Terrain: Classical Sociology and Culture	11
Introduction	11
Enlightenment and Romanticism	12
‘Culture’ and ‘Nature’	17
Karl Marx: culture as ideology	19
German sociology’s responses to Marx	26
Durkheimian studies of culture	31
After Durkheim: into the twentieth century	34
Conclusion	36
2 High German Seriousness: The Frankfurt School on Culture	38
Introduction	38
The Frankfurt School in context	39
Rethinking Marxism	41
Towards totality	43
The Culture Industry	45

The horror of films	47
The mass audience	49
Art as compensation	52
Evaluating the Frankfurt School	54
Conclusion	62
3 An American Tragedy? Mass Culture in the USA	64
Introduction	64
Defining America	65
Cultural disaster	67
National culture and deviance	71
Cultures of class and ethnicity	74
Investigating Middle America	79
Taking America's pulse	82
Towards multiculturalism	84
Conclusion	86
4 Reading from Right to Left: Culturalism in England	88
Introduction	88
Culture against society	89
Paradise lost	91
Towards a literary sociology	93
Richard Hoggart and mass culture	96
Cultural creativity	100
Struggle and resistance	102
The role of Raymond Williams	107
Conclusion	110
5 The Empire of Signs: The Semiotics of Culture	112
Introduction	112
Capturing signs: the ideas of Saussure	113
Saussure's legacy	119
Roland Barthes and the semiotics of popular culture	121
The meaning of myth	123
Thinking fashion	126
Semiotics of resistance and everyday life	130
Semiotics beyond Saussure	133
Conclusion	136
6 Phantasmagoria: Postmodernism and Culture	138
Introduction	138
What is postmodernism?	139

Postmodern style	143
Semiosis unlimited	145
Baudrillard beyond Marx	147
Baudrillard beyond the real	149
American dreams – and nightmares	150
The limits of hyperreality	152
Towards the ‘real’?	155
Marxist ripostes	157
Postmodernity or late modernity?	160
Conclusion	161
7 In the French Style: The Sociology of Pierre Bourdieu	163
Introduction	163
Rethinking sociology	164
Thinking the habitus	166
The games that people play	168
Rethinking class	172
The field of cultural consumption	175
Assessing Bourdieu	184
Conclusion	189
8 The Land of the Free? Producing Culture in America and Elsewhere	190
Introduction	190
Producing culture	191
Creating ‘high culture’	194
Cultural worlds	197
Institutions and contents	200
Understanding Hollywood: ideology or managerial structure?	205
Making television	208
Desperately seeking the real	210
Conclusion	212
Conclusion: Globalization, Reflexivity and the Future	215
Thinking the global	216
The drive to reflexivity	224
The future of the sociology of culture	228
References	230
Index	245