

Contents

Acknowledgements	xi
Transcription Conventions	xiii
1 Introduction: Linguistic Practice in Changing Conditions	1
Part 1: Sociolinguistic Frameworks Tuned to Social Change
2 Interactional Sociolinguistics	11
2.1 Introduction	11
2.2 Origins	12
2.3 Approach to Analysis	13
2.4 IS, Linguistic Anthropology and Conversation Analysis	18
2.5 Practical Interventions beyond the Academy	22
2.6 More Recent Contributions and Research Areas	23
2.7 New Directions	25
3 Linguistic Ethnography	30
(co-authored with Janet Maybin and Celia Roberts)
3.1 Introduction	30
3.2 Ethnography, Linguistics and Linguistic Ethnography	32
3.3 Describing the Elements Interacting in Communication	39
3.4 Linguistic Ethnography in Interdisciplinary Training	47
3.5 Linguistic Ethnography and Non-academic Professions	52
3.6 Conclusion	57
4 Sociolinguistic Citizenship	59
(co-authored with Melanie Cooke and Sam Holmes)
4.1 Introduction	59
4.2 The Idea of 'Linguistic Citizenship'	60
4.3 Sociolinguistic Underpinnings in Linguistic Citizenship	62
4.4 Ideologies of Language and Citizenship in England	67
4.5 Two Recent Projects Promoting Sociolinguistic Citizenship	69

4.6 Sociolinguistic Citizenship in English State Education from the 1960s to the Late 1980s	73
4.7 Universities as a Durable Resource for Sociolinguistic Citizenship	75

Part 2: Ethnicity, Race and Class in Micro-practices of Differentiation and Alignment

5 Ethnicities without Guarantees (co-authored with Roxy Harris)	81
5.1 Introduction	81
5.2 Talking about Race/Ethnicity: The Dominant Idiom	82
5.3 Hall and Gilroy's Alternatives	84
5.4 An Interaction Involving Text Messages, Mobile Phones and Racialising Statements	86
5.5 Linguistic Ethnography and an Initial Analysis of the Girls' Interaction	92
5.6 Understanding Better	98
6 Style Contrasts, Migration and Social Class	103
6.1 Introduction	103
6.2 The Posh/Cockney Style Binary at Central High	106
6.3 The Creole/Asian English Style Contrast in Ashmead	111
6.4 Comparing and Connecting Posh/Cockney and Creole/Asian English	117
6.5 Globalisation and Social Class: Standard Multilingualism and Vernacular Heteroglossia	120
7 From 'Youth Language' to Contemporary Urban Vernaculars	125
7.1 Introduction	125
7.2 Crossing and Stylistation in the South Midlands in the 1980s	127
7.3 Was this Evanescent? Southall 25 Years on	130
7.4 Adolescents Only?	134
7.5 Middle-aged Complications	136
7.6 How Significant is this Style? Placing it in the Repertoire	138
7.7 Contemporary Urban Vernaculars	143
8 Styling in a Language Learnt Later in Life	154
8.1 Introduction	154
8.2 What Mandeep Told us in Interview	157
8.3 Quantitative Analysis of Style-shifting across Contexts	159
8.4 Styling in Narrative Discourse	162

8.5 Styling the Traditional London Vernacular	164
8.6 The Sociolinguistic Development of a Diasporic Local Sensibility	169
Part 3: Everyday (In)securitisation
9 Sociolinguistics and Everyday (In)securitisation (co-authored with Constadina Charalambous, Panayiota Charalambous and Kamran Khan)	179
9.1 Introduction	179
9.2 Critical IR as a Resource for Sociolinguistics	181
9.3 Aspects of (In)securitisation Calling for Sociolinguistic Analysis	184
9.4 The (In)securitisation of Citizenship and Language Policy in the UK	187
9.5 Challenges to Foreign Language Education Theory from a Legacy of Conflict	191
9.6 The Positioning of Sociolinguists	196
10 Crossing of a Different Kind (co-authored with Constadina Charalambous and Panayiota Charalambous)	200
10.1 Introduction	200
10.2 Theory and Methodology	201
10.3 Reconciliatory Policy Initiatives against a Background of Division	203
10.4 Students' Mixed Perceptions of Turkish	204
10.5 Reactions and Impediments at School	207
10.6 Justifying the Learning of Turkish	208
10.7 The Ordinarity of School Foreign Language Learning	211
10.8 Crossing in Another Key: Learning Turkish as 'Technical Redoing'	212
10.9 Comparison with Other Studies of Crossing	217
10.10 Post-conflict Crossing in Education and Peacebuilding	220
11 Goffman and the Everyday Experience of Surveillance (co-authored with Louise Eley)	224
11.1 Introduction	224
11.2 The Interaction Order and Unfocused Interaction	226

11.3	Walking in a Street and the Normalisation of Surveillance	230
11.4	Posting up Stickers and the Experience of Feeling Surveilled	235
11.5	Close-up Interaction with Surveillance Technology	240
11.6	Surveilled Experiences: A Rudimentary Model	241
11.7	Implications	242
Afterword: Jan Blommaert and the Uses of Sociolinguistics: Critical, Political, Personal		248
Bibliography		261
Author Index		291
Subject Index		297