

Table of contents

1 Introduction.....	3
2 Migration, Administrative Law, and Socio-Legal Transformation – the need for new interdisciplinary research in the German context.....	5
2.1 On Empirically Tracing Socio-Legal Transformation	5
2.2 The Reform Approach in Administrative Law – (Neue) Verwaltungsrechtswissenschaft	7
2.3 German Socio-Legal Research.....	9
2.4 Legal Anthropology, Political Anthropology, and the Anthropology of the State	12
3 Composite Heuristic Concepts: central parameters for an integrated interdisciplinary research approach	15
3.1 Theory-Building, Doctrinal Reasoning, and Empirical Socio-Legal Research	16
3.2 Graduated Citizenship	18
3.3 Legal Subjectivity	22
3.4 Room to Manoeuvre/Margins of Interpretation	26
3.5 Notions of Rechtsstaatlichkeit.....	30
4 Methodological Choices and Research Design	32
4.1 The Processual Approach: situational analysis, extended case study, and conflict phases.....	33
4.2 The Relational Perspective: settings, semi-autonomous social fields, and webs of relations.....	35
4.3 The Reflexive Mode: positionality, inequality, and critique.....	36
5 Summary and Outlook	41
6 References.....	43
7 Glossary.....	62