Contents

Introduction and Acknowledgements	viii
1 Explaining Inequality
Introduction	1
Social order and theories of social differentiation	5
Stratification and the debate on social class	8
The growing critique of 'class analysis'	14
Concluding summary	20
2 Class Analysis: The Classic Inheritance and its Development
Introduction	21
Marx	23
Weber	29
Class and sociology after the Second World War	32
• The development of theoretical accounts of the 'class
structure'	33
Culture, class and history	36
Once again, the indivisibility of structure and action	39
Social class, urban sociology and the turn to 'realism'	42
Conclusions	45
3 Measuring the 'Class Structure'
Introduction	49
Occupations	50

vi Contents

 Scales of occupational prestige or 'status' Theoretical ('relational') class schemes: I Goldthorpe Social mobility Theoretical ('relational') class schemes: II Wright Conclusions Problems of Class Analysis Introduction Changes in the structure of work and employment Class and politics Where to put people The 'middle classes' The failure of class action The failure of class action Conclusion Rethinking 'Class Analysis' Introduction The problematic nature of employment 'class' The continuing relevance of employment class Testing and refining measures of employment class Estinging status back in Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship Women and citizenship Social citizenship and the 'underclass' Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities 	• 'Commonsense' occupational hierarchies	53
Social mobility 60 Theoretical ('relational') class schemes: II Wright 69 Conclusions 75 4 Problems of Class Analysis Introduction 79 Changes in the structure of work and employment 81 Class and politics 85 Where to put people 89 The 'middle classes' 89 The 'middle classes' 89 The 'woman problem' 93 The failure of class action 97 Alternative sources of social identification and action 100 Conclusion 106 5 Rethinking 'Class Analysis' Introduction 109 The problematic nature of employment 'class' 114 The continuing relevance of employment class 119 Testing and refining measures of employment class 121 Bringing status back in 126 Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 132 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166	Scales of occupational prestige or 'status'	55
• Theoretical ('relational') class schemes: II Wright Conclusions 75 4 Problems of Class Analysis Introduction 79 Changes in the structure of work and employment 81 Class and politics 85 Where to put people 89 • The 'middle classes' 89 • The 'woman problem' 93 The failure of class action 97 Alternative sources of social identification and action Conclusion 106 5 Rethinking 'Class Analysis' Introduction 109 The problematic nature of employment 'class' 114 The continuing relevance of employment class 119 Testing and refining measures of employment class 121 Bringing status back in 126 Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 132 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166	• Theoretical ('relational') class schemes: I Goldthorpe	58
Conclusions 75 4 Problems of Class Analysis Introduction 79 Changes in the structure of work and employment 81 Class and politics 85 Where to put people 89 • The 'middle classes' 89 • The 'woman problem' 93 The failure of class action 97 Alternative sources of social identification and action 100 Conclusion 106 5 Rethinking 'Class Analysis' Introduction 109 The problematic nature of employment 'class' 114 The continuing relevance of employment class 119 Testing and refining measures of employment class 121 Bringing status back in 126 Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 132 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166	Social mobility	60
A Problems of Class Analysis Introduction 79 Changes in the structure of work and employment 81 Class and politics 85 Where to put people 89 • The 'middle classes' 89 • The 'woman problem' 93 The failure of class action 97 Alternative sources of social identification and action 100 Conclusion 106 5 Rethinking 'Class Analysis' Introduction 109 The problematic nature of employment 'class' 114 The continuing relevance of employment class 119 Testing and refining measures of employment class 121 Bringing status back in 126 Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 132 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166	` ,
Introduction 79 Changes in the structure of work and employment 81 Class and politics 85 Where to put people 89 • The 'middle classes' 89 • The 'woman problem' 93 The failure of class action 97 Alternative sources of social identification and action 100 Conclusion 106 5 Rethinking 'Class Analysis' Introduction 109 The problematic nature of employment 'class' 114 The continuing relevance of employment class 119 Testing and refining measures of employment class 121 Bringing status back in 126 Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 132 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166	Conclusions	75
Changes in the structure of work and employment Class and politics Where to put people The 'middle classes' The 'woman problem' The failure of class action Alternative sources of social identification and action Conclusion The problematic nature of employment 'class' Introduction The problematic nature of employment class Testing and refining measures of employment class Testing and refining measures of employment class Tonclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction The Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship Women and citizenship Social citizenship and the 'underclass' Conclusions 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction Throduction Tonclusions Testing and Fatitlements The conclusions of class and status Testing and refining measures of employment class Testing and refining measures Testing and refining measures Testing and	4 Problems of Class Analysis
Class and politics 85 Where to put people 89 • The 'middle classes' 89 • The 'woman problem' 93 The failure of class action 97 Alternative sources of social identification and action 100 Conclusion 106 5 Rethinking 'Class Analysis' Introduction 109 The problematic nature of employment 'class' 114 The continuing relevance of employment class 119 Testing and refining measures of employment class 121 Bringing status back in 126 Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 132 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166	Introduction	79
Where to put people The 'middle classes' The 'woman problem' The failure of class action Alternative sources of social identification and action Conclusion Testining 'Class Analysis' Introduction The problematic nature of employment 'class' The continuing relevance of employment class Testing and refining measures of employment class Bringing status back in Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship The Ace and citizenship Social citizenship and the 'underclass' Testing and refining measures of employment class The conclusions T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction To the transfer of the concept of citizenship and the 'underclass' Testing and refining measures of employment class and the 'underclass' To Conclusions The continuing relevance of employment class and the concept of citizenship and Entitlements The continuing relevance of employment class and the concept of citizenship and Entitlements The conclusions are concept of citizenship and the 'underclass' The conclusions are concept of citizenship and the 'underclass' The conclusions are concept of citizenship and the 'underclass' The conclusions are concept of concept of citizenship and the 'underclass' The concept of class and consciousness communities	Changes in the structure of work and employment	81
 The 'middle classes' The 'woman problem' The failure of class action Alternative sources of social identification and action Conclusion Rethinking 'Class Analysis' Introduction The problematic nature of employment 'class' The continuing relevance of employment class Testing and refining measures of employment class Bringing status back in Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship Women and citizenship Race and citizenship and the 'underclass' Conclusions Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction Introduction 	Class and politics	85
• The 'woman problem' The failure of class action Alternative sources of social identification and action Conclusion 5 Rethinking 'Class Analysis' Introduction 109 The problematic nature of employment 'class' 114 The continuing relevance of employment class 119 Testing and refining measures of employment class 121 Bringing status back in 126 Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 132 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 T Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166	Where to put people	89
The failure of class action Alternative sources of social identification and action Conclusion 5 Rethinking 'Class Analysis' Introduction The problematic nature of employment 'class' The continuing relevance of employment class Testing and refining measures of employment class Testing and refining measures of employment class Bringing status back in Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship Vomen and citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' Conclusions 162 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166	• The 'middle classes'	89
Alternative sources of social identification and action Conclusion 106 5 Rethinking 'Class Analysis' Introduction 109 The problematic nature of employment 'class' 114 The continuing relevance of employment class 119 Testing and refining measures of employment class 121 Bringing status back in 126 Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 132 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166	• The 'woman problem'	93
Conclusion 106 5 Rethinking 'Class Analysis' Introduction 109 The problematic nature of employment 'class' 114 The continuing relevance of employment class 119 Testing and refining measures of employment class 121 Bringing status back in 126 Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 132 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166	The failure of class action	97
5 Rethinking 'Class Analysis' Introduction 109 The problematic nature of employment 'class' 114 The continuing relevance of employment class 119 Testing and refining measures of employment class 121 Bringing status back in 126 Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 132 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities 166	Alternative sources of social identification and action	100
Introduction 109 The problematic nature of employment 'class' 114 The continuing relevance of employment class 119 Testing and refining measures of employment class 121 Bringing status back in 126 Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 132 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166	Conclusion	106
The problematic nature of employment 'class' The continuing relevance of employment class Testing and refining measures of employment class Bringing status back in Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship Women and citizenship 140 Women and citizenship Social citizenship and the 'underclass' Conclusions 157 Conclusions 162 T. Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166	5 Rethinking 'Class Analysis'
The continuing relevance of employment class Testing and refining measures of employment class 121 Bringing status back in 126 Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 132 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166	Introduction	109
The continuing relevance of employment class Testing and refining measures of employment class 121 Bringing status back in 126 Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 132 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166	The problematic nature of employment 'class'	114
Testing and refining measures of employment class Bringing status back in 126 Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 132 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166	• • •	119
Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status 6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166		121
6 Citizenship and Entitlements Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166	Bringing status back in	126
Introduction 138 T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 T Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities 166	Conclusion: the interrelationship of class and status	132
T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities 166	6 Citizenship and Entitlements
T. H. Marshall and the development of the concept of citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities 166	Introduction	138
citizenship 140 Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities 166		200
Women and citizenship 148 Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities 166		140
Race and citizenship 153 Social citizenship and the 'underclass' 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities 166	•	148
Social citizenship and the 'underclass' Conclusions 157 Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166		153
Conclusions 162 7 Lifestyle, Consumption Categories and Consciousness Communities Introduction 166		157
Communities 166		162
		ness
	Introduction	166
	Consumption-sector cleavages	167

	Contents	vii
Culture, class and occupation		171
Social class and the work of Pierre Bourdieu		173
The 'new middle class' - the ultimate consumption	n
category?		175
Summary and conclusions		183
8 Conclusions
Introduction		187
Class formation		190
• Describing inequality: contemporary 'class map	os'	190
• The 'upper class'		192
• The 'underclass'		194
• The decline of the traditional 'working class' an	id the increase in the 'middle classes'		196
Class consciousness and action		197
• The 'working class'		198
The 'middle classes'		202
Concluding remarks		206
References		211
Index		228