

Contents

Introduction: Silent Messengers. The World of Goods and the Circulation of Knowledge in the Early Modern Netherlands Sven Dupré & Christoph Lüthy	1
Botanical, Heraldic and Historical Exchanges Concerning Lilies: The Background of Jean-Jacques Chifflet's Lilium Francicum (1658) Vittoria Feola	13
Flora and the Hapsburg Crown: Clusius, Spain, and American Natural History María Luz López Terrada	43
The Migration of Instrumental Knowledge from Flanders to Spain. The Role of the Sixteenth-Century Flemish Instrument Maker Petrus ab Aggere Koenraad Van Cleempoel	69
Moving around the Ellipse. Conic Sections in Leiden, 1620-1660 Fokko Jan Dijksterhuis	89
How to Become a Seventeenth-Century Natural Philosopher: The Case of Cornelis Drebbel (1572-1633) Vera Keller	125
Noah's Ark Restored (and Wrecked): Dutch Collectors, Natural History and the Problem of Biblical Exegesis Eric Jorink	153
A Museum of Wonders or a Cemetery of Corpses? The Commercial Exchange of Anatomical Collections in Early Modern Netherlands Dániel Margócsy	185
Conflicting Pictures: Illustrating Descartes' Traité de l'homme Claus Zittel	217
Trading Luxury Glass, Picturing Collections and Consuming Objects of Knowledge in Early Seventeenth-Century Antwerp Sven Dupré	261

Contents

Circulating Knowledge or Superstition? The Dutch Debate on Divination Koen Vermeir	293
Closing Comments Harold J. Cook	329
Bibliography	335
Biographical notes	377
Index	381