

CONTENTS

Chapter One	Introduction 1 Hilde Nielssen, Inger Marie Okkenhaug and Karina Hestad Skeie
Chapter Two	James Sibree and Lars Dahle: Norwegian and British missionary ethnography as a transnational and national activity 23 Hilde Nielssen
Chapter Three	The many Purposes of Missionary Work: Annie Royle Taylor as Missionary, Travel Writer, Collector and Empire Builder 43 Inbal Livne
Chapter Four	The Missionary's Progress. Evolving Images of 'Self' and 'Other' in the Career of Jakob Spieth (1856–1914) 71 Werner Ustorff
Chapter Five	'Self' and 'Other' as Biblical Representations in Mission Literature..... 87 Lisbeth Mikaelsson
Chapter Six	Confessionalised Medicine. The Norwegian Missionary Society's Leprosy Narratives from Madagascar 1887–1907 101 Sigurd Sandmo
Chapter Seven	On Difference, Sameness and Double Binds. Ambiguous Discourses, Failed Aspirations..... 131 Anne Folke Henningsen
Chapter Eight	Mission Appropriation or Appropriating the Mission? Negotiating Local and Global Christianity in Nineteenth and Twentieth Century Madagascar 157 Karina Hestad Skeie

Chapter Nine	A “Good and Blessed Father”. Yonan of Ada on Justin Perkins, Urmia (Iran), 1870187 Heleen Murre-van den Berg
Chapter Ten	Refugees, Relief and the Restoration of a Nation: Norwegian mission in the Armenian Republic, 1922–1925207 Inger Marie Okkenhaug
Chapter Eleven	Mission by Other Means? Dora Earthy and the Save the Children Fund in the 1930s233 Deborah Gaitskell
Chapter Twelve	When Missions Became Development: Ironies of “NGOisation” in Mainstream Canadian Churches in the 1960s259 Ruth Compton Brouwer
Chapter Thirteen	Re-imagining ‘metropole’ and ‘periphery’ in mission history.....293 Michael Marten
List of Contributors.....	317
Index	321