

CONTENTS

List of Plates	viii
List of Figures	ix
Notes on Contributors	xii
Preface	xv

PART ONE INTRODUCTION 1

- 1 Between art and information: Towards a collecting history of photographs 3
Elizabeth Edwards and Christopher Morton

PART TWO BECOMING COLLECTIONS 25

- 2 Multiple collections and fluid meanings: Alfred Maudslay's archaeological photographs at the British Museum 27
Duncan Shields
- 3 Self assembled: Isabella Stewart Gardner's photographic albums and the development of her museum, 1902–24 47
Casey Riley
- 4 'An invitation to visit Windermere': Moments of departure and return in the biography of the Bryan Heseltine collection 65
Darren Newbury
- 5 From Private to public: The David MacGregor maritime photographic collection 83
Eleni Papavasileiou

PART THREE SCIENTIFIC DOCUMENTS 99

- 6 Collecting portraits, exhibiting race: Augustus Pitt-Rivers's cartes de visite at the South Kensington Museum 101
Christopher Morton
- 7 Collecting photographs, constructing disciplines: The rationality and rhetoric of photography at the Museum of Economic Botany 119
Caroline Cornish
- 8 Photographs as scientific and social objects in the correspondence of Charles Darwin 139
Geoffrey Belknap and Sophie Defrance

PART FOUR SHAPED IN HISTORY 157

- 9 Revolutionary photographs: The Museo de La Revolución, Havana, Cuba 159
Kristine Juncker
- 10 Photography in Jersey under German occupation: The 1940 'Order concerning open-air photography' and photography at the Société Jersiaise Museum 177
Gareth Syvret
- 11 From them to us: Changing meanings of photographs of Māori at Te Papa 195
Athol McCredie

PART FIVE CURATORIAL PRACTICES 213

- 12 Unwrapping the layers: Translating photograph albums into an exhibition context 215
Ulrike Bessel

- 13 To collect and preserve negatives: The Eli Lotar collection
at the Centre Georges Pompidou 231
Damarice Amao
- 14 Looking for Bolton in the Worktown Archive 247
Caroline Edge

Index 265