

Simon Dickel

BLACK/GAY

The Harlem Renaissance, the Protest Era,
and Constructions of Black Gay Identity
in the 1980s and 90s

LIT

Michigan State University Press

Contents

1	Introduction	1
2	Debates of the 1980s	21
2.1	Political Strategies and Debates	23
2.2	The Critique of White Gay Racism	26
2.3	The Debate about Black Gay Identity	28
2.4	The Debate about Gay Interracial Love and Sexuality	32
2.5	Constructing Black Gay Myths of Origin	40
3	Queer of Color Critique – Contemporary Theoretical Approaches	49
3.1	Intersectionality	50
3.1.1	Anti-essentialist Approaches towards Identities	50
3.1.2	Representational Intersectionality: Stereotypes of Black Men	56
3.1.3	The Construction of Gayness as a White Identity	62
3.1.4	AIDS	65
3.2	Black Queer Studies	66
3.3	Interpellation	69
3.4	Disidentification	72
3.5	Quare/Signifying	75

4	Looking for the Harlem Renaissance	83
4.1	Race and Representation	84
4.1.1	Dissident Voices	88
4.1.2	Queer Readings of the Harlem Renaissance	89
4.1.3	Richard Bruce Nugent: "Smoke, Lilies and Jade" (1926)	93
4.2	Steven Corbin: No Easy Place to Be (1989)	100
4.2.1	Coming Out in the Harlem Renaissance	105
4.2.2	Signifying on "Smoke, Lilies and Jade"	110
4.3	Isaac Julien: Looking for Langston (1989)	117
4.3.1	Cinematography and Black Queer History	121
4.3.2	The Burden of Representation	131
4.3.3	Adapting "Smoke, Lilies and Jade"	133
4.3.4	Gay Whiteness	136
4.4	Samuel R. Delany: "Atlantis: Model 1924" (1995)	140
4.4.1	Meta-Signifying	143
4.4.2	Inventing Origins	145
4.4.3	Deconstructing Black Gay Myths of Origin	158
5	Looking for Baldwin and the Protest Era	171
5.1	Baldwin and the Protest Era	171
5.1.1	Transatlantic Baldwin	179
5.1.2	Richard Wright and the Protest Novel	180
5.1.3	Black Nationalism and Homophobia	184
5.1.4	Baldwin's Heterosexual Mask	189
5.2	Randall Kenan: A Visitation of Spirits (1989)	192
5.2.1	Baldwin Revisited	200
5.2.2	Constructions of Gay Whiteness	208

5.3	Melvin Dixon: Vanishing Rooms (1991)	212
5.3.1	Intertextuality and Intersectionality	213
5.3.2	White Gay Racism and Black Gay Identity	224
5.4	Samuel R. Delany: The Motion of Light in Water (1988)	231
5.4.1	Interracial Desire and Interclass Contact	231
5.4.2	Experimental Self-Reflections	235
5.4.3	Black Autobiography and the Coming Out Narrative	243
5.4.4	“Coming/Out”	249
5.4.5	Differences and Intersections	253
5.4.6	Delany and Baldwin	259
6	Conclusion	265
	Works Cited	277