

Contents

Chapter 1:

Introduction — 1

- 1.1 Scope and motivation — 1
- 1.2 Hypothesis: Strategies of creating and maintaining ‘reminiscence clusters’ — 9
- 1.3 Introducing the praxeological approach — 11
 - 1.3.1 What is agency? — 11
 - 1.3.2 What are practices? — 13
 - 1.3.3 What is religion? — 16
- 1.4 Finding religious practices at Saqqara — 18
 - 1.4.1 Funerary, post-funerary, mortuary, and other practices — 23
 - 1.4.2 The problem of preservation of mortuary practices — 36
 - 1.4.3 Eloquent buildings — 41
 - 1.4.3.1 The use of texts and images — 43
 - 1.4.3.2 Literacy and the tomb as auditive space — 47
- 1.5 Prospect — 50

Chapter 2:

Representation — 51

- 2.1 Tomb commemoration theory — 52
 - 2.1.1 Generic figures — 61
 - 2.1.2 Non-generic individuals — 61
- 2.2 Family commemoration in tombs — 63
 - 2.2.1 The tomb of Pay (i) and Raia (i) — 67
 - 2.2.2 The tomb of Khay (i) — 71
 - 2.2.3 The tomb of Raia (ii) — 73
 - 2.2.4 The tomb of Amenemone (i) — 76
 - 2.2.5 The tomb of Mose — 77
 - 2.2.6 The tomb of Tatia — 82
 - 2.2.7 The tomb of Paser (i) — 85
 - 2.2.8 Iniy’s family tomb — 87
 - 2.2.9 The tomb of Pabes — 94
 - 2.2.10 The tomb of Amenemone (ii) — 96
 - 2.2.11 The tomb of Ry (i) — 97
 - 2.2.12 Some notes on other family tombs in the Cairo concession area — 98

- 2.3 Commemoration of office — 99
- 2.3.1 The tomb of Ptahemwia (i) — 100
- 2.3.2 The tomb of Meryneith — 103
- 2.3.3 The tomb of Iniua — 107
- 2.3.4 The rock-cut tomb of Maia — 110
- 2.3.5 The tomb of Maya — 114
- 2.3.6 The tomb of Horemheb — 121
- 2.3.7 The tomb of Tia and Tia — 125
- 2.4 Strengthening reminiscence clusters by means of representation — 130

Chapter 3:

Offerings and other gifts at New Kingdom Saqqara — 133

- 3.1 Studying gift-giving — 133
- 3.1.1 Gift-giving theory — 133
- 3.1.2 Changing excavation methods — 135
- 3.2 Creating reminiscence clusters by means of gift-giving — 136
- 3.2.1 Votive shabtis — 137
- 3.2.1.1 The shabtis of Maya — 141
- 3.2.1.2 The shabtis of Meryneith and “Sethnakht” — 143
- 3.2.1.3 The shabtis of Pay (i) and Raia (i) — 144
- 3.2.1.4 The shabtis of Horemheb — 146
- 3.2.1.5 The shabtis of Tia and Tia — 147
- 3.2.1.6 A parallel from Sedment: The shabtis of Parahotep — 149
- 3.2.1.7 Summary of shabti donation at Saqqara — 153
- 3.2.2 Evidence for religious practices at the New Kingdom tombs at Saqqara — 155
- 3.2.2.1 The tomb of Samut — 156
- 3.2.2.2 Offering practices in the tomb of Maya — 159
- 3.2.2.3 Offering practices in the tomb of Tia and Tia — 163
- 3.2.2.4 The tomb of Horemheb — 170
- 3.3 Oral performance — 172
- 3.3.1 Genre — 172
- 3.3.2 The spatial distribution of religious texts and images at Saqqara — 176
- 3.3.2.1 South of Unas Causeway — 177
- 3.3.2.2 Bubasteion cemetery — 183
- 3.3.2.3 Teti cemetery — 184
- 3.3.2.4 Cairo concession area — 186
- 3.4 Occasional visits? — 187

Chapter 4:

The veneration of gods and ancestors at Saqqara and beyond — 189

- 4.1 The cultural geography of Memphis — 189
- 4.2 Worshipping gods and divine ancestors at Saqqara — 192
 - 4.2.1 The Sokar festival — 194
 - 4.2.2 Religious activity at the Serapeum — 196
- 4.3 Statue cults at Memphis and beyond — 208
- 4.4 Towards a wider understanding of cultural geography at Saqqara — 220

Chapter 5:

Conclusions — 221

Abbreviations and symbols — 225

Bibliography — 226

Index — 265