

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgments

Introduction

Prologue	9
Reading the 'Fictitious President'	15
No Textualization without Representation? Situating Presidential Unreality	21
Epistemic Panic, Fact Panic, and a Passion for the Hyperreal	22
Realisms: Discourses of Sobriety, Spectacles of Referentiality	26
The Politics of (Post-)Postmodernism	29
The Disciplinary Work(ings) of 'Cultural Work'	32
(New) American Studies	33
New Historicism	35
(Postclassical) Narratology	37
Conclusion	39

1. Frames, Facts, and Fiction: Popular Narratology and Presidential Unreality

Introduction: Of Traveling Theories	41
Linguistic Unreality	45
Spinning Frames and Bouncing Facts	45
The Narrative Turn	52
Popular Narratology	57
A Tale of Presidential Storytelling: Frank Rich's The Greatest Story Ever Sold	63
Rough Drafts of History: Instant Historiography and Kulturkritik	65
Authentication, Textual Authority, and Ambivalence	69
Crossovers and Collapses	73
Kidnapped Readers, Hijacked Stories: The Librarian and the Power of Narrative	77
Hitting Home in the Desert of the Real	80
Fog Facts and Sticky Tales	84
Getting the Narrative Right	91
Conclusion	97

2. The Hyperreal and Its Appeal: Hollywood and 'Californian' Unreality
Introduction: The Reel and the Real	101
California Crossroads: The Uses of the Golden State	107
No There There	110
The Reel Troubles of Hard-Boiled Men	114
Frankfurt, CA: Kulturkritik , Iconoclasm, and the Dream Factory	119
Gaudy Games of Referentiality: American Hero as Satire	123
Telling Games: American Hero 's Narrative Setup	126
The Reel America vs. The Real America	131
Play-Boy? The Hard-Balled Detective as Inside Narrator	135
Tale Whacks Reality? Wag the Dog 's Take on Social Reality	140
"How Close Are You to This?" or: The Medium Is the Menace	144
"What Difference Does It Make if It's True?"	148
"That Is a Complete Fucking Fraud. [...] It's so Honest"	153
Conclusion	158
3. Selling Images: Market(ing) Critique and the Graphic Revolution
Introduction: At Pennsylvania and Madison	163
Selling the Image	166
Social and Cultural Critique	171
The Market and the Public Sphere	176
The Rise of the Image	181
Selling Out: The Othering of the Image in The Selling of the President 1968	186
The Telling of the President	191
Resonances and Ventriloquism	196
Ambivalence and Othered Textualities	202
Defrosting the Image: The Nostalgia of Frost/Nixon	209
"Just Think of the Numbers It Would Get": Truths and Audiences	212
"The First and Greatest Sin": Ambivalences of the Image	217
"I Guess We Just Got Caught Up, You Know, Reminiscing"	222
Conclusion	226
Conclusion: Strange Coincidences, Powerful Collusions
Looking Back	230
Closing Thoughts	232
List of Works Cited	237