
Contents

1	Introduction	1
	Bibliography	8
2	Theory: The Dark Social Capital of Religious Radicals	13
2.1	Economics of Religion	13
2.1.1	Secularization and Individualization Theories Revisited	13
2.1.2	The Demand Side: Defining Individual Religious Behavior	16
2.1.3	The Supply Side: Religious Markets and the Church-Sect-Continuum	20
2.1.4	Salafism and Jihadism as Religious Sects	21
2.1.5	Religious Violence and Terrorism	27
2.2	Social Capital Theory	29
2.2.1	Operationalizing Social Capital: Trust, Social Networks and Norms of Reciprocity	33
2.2.1.1	Trust	33
2.2.1.2	Social Networks	35
2.2.1.3	Norms of Reciprocity	36
2.2.2	Bonding Social Capital: Jihadi Radicalization as Religious Conversion Process	38
2.2.3	Bridging Social Capital: The Mobilization of Resources in Radical Sects	46
	Bibliography	57
3	Data Sources and Methods of Data Analysis	69
3.1	Triangulation as Research Design	69

3.2	Data Sources	71
3.3	Methods of Data Analysis	76
3.3.1	Descriptive Statistics	76
3.3.2	Social Network Analysis	78
3.3.3	Narrative Analysis	85
	Bibliography	87
4	Socio-Demographic and Socio-Economic Backgrounds	93
4.1	Gender, Age, and Family Status	93
4.2	Education and Profession	96
4.3	Ethnicity	99
4.4	Social Problems	103
	Bibliography	106
5	Dynamics of Jihadi Networks in Germany, Austria, and Switzerland	109
5.1	General Network Characteristics	111
5.2	Temporal Social Network Analysis	114
	Bibliography	130
6	Geographical Clusters	133
6.1	Places of Residence	133
6.2	Geospatial Network Analysis	140
	Bibliography	151
7	Mobilizing Members	153
7.1	The Social Process of Individual Radicalization	153
7.1.1	Social Isolation	161
7.1.2	Affiliation with Radical Groups	167
7.1.3	The Formation of Local Clusters: The Case of the Winterthur Network	175
7.1.4	Women, Marriage, and Family	184
7.1.4.1	Women	184
7.1.4.2	Marriage	194
7.1.4.2.1	Relationship Conflicts	196
7.1.4.2.2	Secondary Conversion	198
7.1.4.2.3	The Jihadi Marriage Market	206
7.1.4.3	Socialization in Jihadi Families	212

7.1.4.4	Female Agency and the Jihadi Education of Children: The Case of Majd Najjar	214
7.2	Salafi Preachers and their Dawah	223
7.2.1	Formation (Late 1990s to Early 2000s)	227
7.2.2	Consolidation (Late 2000s)	230
7.2.3	Fragmentation and Antagonism (Early 2010s)	236
7.2.4	Ideological Conflicts (Mid-2010s)	250
7.3	Salafi and Jihadi Mosques	258
7.3.1	Germany	262
7.3.2	Austria	267
7.3.3	Switzerland	269
7.4	The Internet	273
7.4.1	The Internet as Medium	275
7.4.2	The Jihadi Online Milieu	280
	Bibliography	285
8	Mobilizing Cohesion	303
8.1	Traitors and Spies	303
8.2	Prisoner Support	310
8.3	Defectors	314
	Bibliography	319
9	Mobilizing Funds and Charity	323
9.1	The Salafi Economy	323
9.2	Informal Altruism	327
9.3	Charity and Support for Bosnia	331
9.3.1	Support for the Foreign Mujahideen during the Bosnian War	331
9.3.2	The Creation of Salafi Enclaves in Post-War Bosnia	336
9.4	Charity and Support for Syria	341
9.4.1	Salafi Charity Organizations	341
9.4.2	Donations for Syria	343
9.4.3	Exclusive Solidarity	347
9.4.4	Support for Jihadi Insurgent Groups	350
	Bibliography	357

10 Mobilizing Violence	363
10.1 Jihadi Foreign Fighters from Germany, Austria, and Switzerland	363
10.1.1 Departure Patterns	363
10.1.1.1 Afghanistan and Bosnia (Early 1990s)	366
10.1.1.2 Afghanistan and Chechnya (Late 1990s and Early 2000s)	369
10.1.1.3 Afghanistan and Iraq (Late 2000s)	371
10.1.1.4 Somalia (Early 2010s)	375
10.1.1.5 Syria and Iraq (2010s)	376
10.1.1.5.1 First Years of the Syrian War	379
10.1.1.5.2 The Formation of the Islamic State	386
10.1.2 Foreign Fighter Facilitation Networks	390
10.1.2.1 Facilitation Networks in the 1990s and early 2000s	396
10.1.2.2 Finding Routes to Waziristan and Somalia in the late 2000s	399
10.1.2.3 The Professionalization of Facilitation Networks to Syria	405
10.1.2.4 “Yes, always via Vienna”: The Mechanism of Facilitation Networks	414
10.1.3 The Roles of Foreign Fighters	420
10.1.3.1 Training	422
10.1.3.2 Fighters	424
10.1.3.3 Support	426
10.1.3.4 Leadership Positions	427
10.1.3.5 Women and Children	431
10.1.4 Foreign Fighter Colonies	438
10.1.5 Returnees	446
10.2 Domestic Terrorism	453
10.2.1 Early Incidences Against Foreign Targets	457
10.2.2 Increasing Threats	460
10.2.3 The Era of IS-Inspired Terrorism	464
Bibliography	480

11	Conclusion	499
11.1	Bonding Social Capital and Radicalization	500
11.2	Radical Brokers and Hubs	503
11.3	Mutual Support	509
11.4	Violence	511
11.5	Preventing and Countering Jihadi Networks	516
11.6	Limitations and Implications for Future Research	520
	Bibliography	522