

Contents

Christian Giordano, François Ruegg and Andrea Boscoboinik
Introduction: Does East Go West or Does West Go East? 7

David A. Kideckel
Post-socialism as Uncertainty, Uncertainty about Post-socialism 15

Vintilă Mihăilescu
Postsocialism: Views from Within. 27

Chris Hann
Beyond Cold War, Beyond Otherness. Some Implications of Socialism and Postsocialism for Anthropology. 35

Ina-Maria Greverus
Die Bürgermeister oder: Being West, Going East. Eine deutsch-deutsche Überlagerungsgeschichte post-postsozialistisch betrachtet 57

François Ruegg
Postsocialism and the Confinement of Anthropology 81

Milena Benovska-Sabkova
Postsocialism as Rapid Social Change. On the Example of Transforming Family and Kinship in Bulgaria 95

Don Kalb
“History Repeats Itself”: Subversive Insights of a Polish Populist. 109

Alina Žvinklienė
How the East Goes West: Managing Equal Opportunities in Lithuania . . . 131

Denis Dafflon
National Minorities in Georgia in the Context of Nation-Building and State-Building (2004–2012) 153

Andrea Friedli
Children of Genghis Khan, Lenin and MacDonald’s. Cultural Belongings of the Post-Soviet Generation in Tatarstan 167

Melinda Dincă

Postsocialist Views on Gypsiness. The Case of Roma Communities in Romania	183
--	-----

Sorin Gog

The “New Heavenly Citizenship”: Gypsiness and the Pentecostal Ethno- politics of Identity	197
--	-----

Petr Skalník

Postcommunism Is Here to Stay. An Optimistic Anthropologist’s View . . .	219
--	-----

Christian Giordano

Does Postsocialism in Eastern Europe Mirror Postcolonialism? Grand Narratives, Myths and Inventions about the Fall of the Berlin Wall and What Followed	225
---	-----

About the Authors	245
-----------------------------	-----