

Contents

Notes on Contributors	vii
Introduction	1
Graham McGregor and R.S. White
Part one Contexts of responsiveness	9
1 Attending the hearing: listening in legal settings	11
Peter Goodrich
2 Therapeutic listening	37
Richard G. Tedeschi
3 'Listening in': negotiating relationships between listeners and presenters on radio phone-in programmes	52
Deborah Cameron and Deborah Hills
4 Who is context?	69
John Pellowe
Part two Listener response and communication	97
5 Eavesdropper response and the analysis of everyday communicative events	99
Graham McGregor
6 Accommodating troubles-talk: the management of elderly self-disclosure	112
Nikolas Coupland, Karen Henwood, Justine Coupland, and Howard Giles

Contents

7	The interpreter as listener: an observation of response in the oral mode of translating	145
	Ian Mason
8	Responsive listening as a part of religious rhetoric: the case of black pentecostal preaching	160
	Christine Callender and Deborah Cameron
Part three Responsive readers		179
9	Where interpretation stops	181
	Robert Sharpe
10	'You will use my words to make your own meaning': listening to Nadine Gordimer's Burger's Daughter	196
	Christine Devonshire and Susan Cordwell
11	Responding to the Word: problems and pitfalls in interpreting the Bible	216
	Mark Corner
12	The birth of the reader	242
	R.S. White	