

Generational Shifts in Contemporary German Culture

Edited by Laurel Cohen-Pfister and
Susanne Vees-Gulani

CAMDEN HOUSE

Rochester, New York

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
-----------------	----

Introduction: A Generational Approach to German Culture Susanne Vees-Gulani and Laurel Cohen-Pfister	1
--	---

Part 1: Victim Legacies and Perpetrator Postmemory

1: Generations and German-Jewish Writing: Maxim Biller's Representation of German-Jewish Love from "Harlem Holocaust" to Liebe heute Erin McGlothlin	27
2: Between Reevaluation and Repetition: Ulla Hahn's Unscharfe Bilder and the Lasting Influence of Family Conflicts about the Nazi Past in Current Literature of the 1968 Generation Susanne Vees-Gulani	56
3: Beyond the Victims Debate: Flight and Expulsion in Recent Novels by Authors from the Second and Third Generation (Christoph Hein, Reinhard Jirgl, Kathrin Schmidt, and Tanja Dückers) Friederike Eigler	77
4: Fictionalizations: Holocaust Memory and the Generational Construct in the Works of Contemporary Women Writers Katharina Gerstenberger	95
5: Play It Again, Traude: The Transgenerational Transfer of Wounds in Chris Kraus's Vier Minuten Brad Prager	115

Part 2: 1968 and German Terrorism

6: From Student Movement to the Generation of 1968: Generational Conflicts in German Novels from the 1970s and the 1990s Susanne Rinner	139
---	-----

- 7: Ghostly Sisters: Feminist Legacies in Second-Generation Perspectives on West German Terrorism; Judith Kuckart's Wahl der Waffen (1990) and Kaiserstraße (2006) 161
Svea Bräunert
- 8: The Generation Gap: The Reappropriation of the Red Army Faction in Contemporary German Film 184
Ilka Rasch

Part 3: East German Pasts

- 9: Post-Communist Fantasies: Generational Conflict in Eastern German Literature 207
Thomas C. Fox
- 10 From Father, from Son: Generational Perspectives in Christoph Hein's Mama ist gegangen (2003) and Jakob Hein's Vielleicht ist es sogar schön (2004) 225
Caroline Schaumann
- 11: No Questions Asked: Intergenerational Silence in Stasi Victim Families; Jeder schweigt von etwas anderem (2006) 245
Laurel Cohen-Pfister

Part 4: Globalized Identities

- 12: Transnationalism Meets Provincialism: Generations and Identifications in Faserland, Kurz und schmerzlos, and Selam Berlin 269
Maria Stehle
- 13: From Farbe bekennen to Schokoladenkind: Generational Change in Afro-German Autobiographies 287
Reinhild Steingröver
- Notes on the Contributors 311
- Index 315