

Table of Contents

Index of Figures.....	7
Index of Tables	9
Preface.....	11
1 Introduction: Demographics of reunification	13
1.1 Theoretical setting	15
1.1.1 Modernization theory as early theoretical framework.....	16
1.1.2 Divergence and diversification: The appropriate way to look at German reunification?	16
1.1.3 Hybridization theory	17
1.2 Assessing the demographics of reunification on different layers and scales	18
1.3 Method, Data and Restrictions	19
2 Forming demographic processes of reunified Germany: Patterns of fertility, mortality and migration.....	25
2.1 Fertility, living arrangements and related aspects.....	30
2.1.1 Total Fertility Rate and Cohort Fertility.....	30
2.1.2 Fertility decline and children per women in the light of the CTFR.....	37
2.1.3 Marriage and divorce.....	39
2.1.4 Number and composition of households	44
2.1.5 Cultural conceptions of family as a socio-demographical marker between East and West?	45
2.2 Mortality and life expectancy (Michael Mühlichen, BiB).....	49
2.2.1 Life expectancy at birth and remaining life expectancy at age 65.....	50
2.2.2 Regional mortality differences	52
2.2.3 Main causes of death	54
2.3 Migration in divided and reunified Germany	57
2.3.1 Patterns of GDR internal migration and the special case of the GDR-FRG migration regime.....	57
2.3.2 Internal migration since reunification	59
2.3.4 International migration.....	68

3	The socio-cultural and socio-economic perspectives	73
3.1	Attitudes towards reunification in German society	74
3.2	The socio-economic divide – a long lasting challenge	78
4	Consequences of post-unification demographics: A persistent east-west divide? (with Michael Mühlichen, BiB)	89
5	Knowledge and notions on the demographics of Korean reunification (Sam Hyun Yoo, KIHASA).....	101
5.1	Typologies of reunification	101
5.2	Tales of demographic change in an open or reunified Korea	102
5.2.1	Populations of South and North Korea.....	102
5.2.2	Fertility and marriage	105
5.2.3	Health, mortality and life expectancy.....	109
5.2.4	Migration.....	110
5.2.5	Economy, education, urbanization	111
5.2.6	Korea as one – A challenging vision	113
6	Concluding thoughts on a Germany-inspired Korea scenario	115
6.1	Social freezing and low fertility	115
6.2	Leaps in health and life expectancy.....	116
6.3	The challenge of migration.....	116
6.4	Social transformation and challenge.....	118
6.5	German reunification – No blueprint for Korea but a valuable knowledge base	119
	References	121