Contents

	Contributors	viii
1.	Introduction: Universities in the Global Knowledge Economy	1
	Henry Etzkowitz and Loet Leydesdorff A triple helix of university-industry-government relations Recombinations among knowledge flows Theoretical framework The laboratory of knowledge-based economic development	1 2 3 5
Pai	t I The Construction of the Knowledge-based Regime
2.	The New Role of the University in the Productive Sector Judith Sutz	11
	What is really new in academia-productive sector-government relations?	11
	Some of the transformations derived from playing the 'third role'	16
3.	Innovation Networks in Australia and China Tim Turpin and Sam Garrett-Jones	21
	The disorganization of academic research	21
	Research alliances in Australia and China	25
	Conclusion: the reorganization of academic research	30
4.	Technological Programs in the European Union Philippe Laredo	33
	Introduction	33
	The EU framework program and the French national research effort	35
	The strong networking effects of EU programs	35
	Diversified outputs and effects	36
	'Basic technological research' networks as a structural	• rearrangement for technology acquisition by 'global' firms	38
	Direct effects of innovation-geared networks that question the	20
	Publicly lod networks and innevation in collective goods: a	39
	major issue for public research policies?	40
	Conclusion	41
п.		.1
ra	it is the Co-evolution of Technologies and Institutions

:

5. When Worlds Collide: Patents in Public-Sector Research	47
---	----

f

		-
	Andrew Webster and Kathryn Packer	17
	Summary of UK survey results	47
	Technology transfer and devolved intellectual property rights	40 50
	Occupational role expectations	51
	Patenting and research programs	52
	The costs of patenting	54
	Impact of the devolution of patenting on external links Impact of patenting on the disclosure and dissemination of	55
	research results	56
	Discussion	5/
	Conclusion	39
6.	Emerging Environments in Biotechnology Maureen D. McKelvey	60
	Introduction	60
	An evolutionary perspective	60
	Defining cognitive and institutional environments	62
	Co-evolution in biotechnology	67
	Concluding remarks	69
7.	The Desktop Model of Innovation in Digital Media William N. Kaghan and Gerald B. Barnett	71
	Social worlds and blind metonymies	72
	Origins and uses of the laboratory metonym in university technology transfer	73
	University-generated digital media applications	74
	Case studies	76
	Conclusion	79
Par	t III The Operation of the Triple Helix
8.	Crossing Boundaries: The Emergence of Research-Technology
0.	Communities	85
	Terry Shinn	00
	The research-technology incubator	86
	Boundaries and fluidity	91
	Remarks and prospects	95
9	Negotiating a New Science: Artificial Intelligence	97
).	Petra Ahrweiler)
	Invisible college and network: first steps of a high-tech science	98
	Adopting science: the 'scientific-political-economic community'	100
	Fragility of the scientific-political-economic community	103
	Consequences for science studies	• 104
10	The New Communication Degine of University Industry
10.	Government Relations	106
	Loet Levdesdorff	100
	Cultural evolution and historical reconstruction	106
	Cultural evolution and instorical reconstruction	100

Translations	110
Consequences	112
Further development of the triple helix	116
Part IV Universities in Knowledge-based Economies
11 Universities and Industrial Competitive Advantage	121
Magnus Gulbrandsen	121
Competitive advantage and university-industry relations	122
University-industry relations and the triple helix model	124
Development of university-industry relations in Cambridge and
Grenoble	125
Development of university-industry relations in the Nordic countries	127
Concluding remarks	130
12. Japan: From Technology to Science Policy	132
Morris Low
Introduction	132
Overcoming the myths	132
Controlled competition	134
University-industry relations	135
Mechanisms at work	136
Problems to be overcome	137
How to overcome the problems	138
Conclusion	140
13. The Entrepreneurial University and the Emergence of Democratic
Corporatism	141
Henry Etzkowitz
Introduction	141
The triple helix model	142
The capitalization of knowledge	143
Normative change in science: the second academic revolution	144
A typology of entrepreneurial scientists	145
Knowledge-based economic development	147
The emergence of democratic corporatism	149
Conclusion: the future location of research	151
Epilogue
14. A Triple Helix of University-Industry-Government Relations	155
Loet Leydesdorff and Henry Etzkowitz
Emergence of the triple helix	155
The evolutionary model	156
The enhanced role of the university	158
The salience of emergence	159
Ongoing processes of differentiation and integration	161
Policy implications	162
Bibliography	163
Name Index	175
Subject Index	179