

"This Companion is the most comprehensive volume dealing with the subject of modern theology we have. It surely will be the standard by which any other accounts of the development of theology since the Enlightenment is judged."

Stanley Hauerwas, Duke Divinity School, USA

"The sea change in human understanding called 'modernity' is widely acknowledged to have presented Christian thinking with critical challenges. At the same time, it has also been a stimulus to new directions in Christian thought. This volume – for which the editors have assembled a hugely impressive range of expertise – is admirably comprehensive in its survey of the principal authors, topics and responses of both the challenge and the stimulus."

Gordon Graham, Princeton Theological Seminary, USA

"This is a compelling compendium of articles of exceptional quality. Perspicuously organized, the volume is characterized by a rare combination of stellar scholarship and reader accessibility."

David S. Pacini, Emory University, USA

"The responses of Christian theology and the churches to the upheavals of the Enlightenment and the advent of modernity are extremely complex and various. In negotiating this formidable era in intellectual history, this Companion is peerless in the extent of its coverage and the authority of its contributors. It is to be urgently commended to teachers and students of Christian theology in the modern period."

Simon Oliver, University of Nottingham, UK

This Companion provides an unrivalled view of the field of modern Christian thought, from the Enlightenment to the twentieth century and beyond. Written by an outstanding team of theologians and philosophers of religion, it covers the following topics:

- key figures and influencers
- central events and movements
- major theological issues and key approaches to Christian theology
- recent topics and trends in Christian thought.

Each entry is clear and accessible, making the book the ideal resource for students of Christian thought and the history and philosophy of religion. It is also a valuable reference for professional theologians and philosophers.

Chad Meister is a professor in the School of Religion and Philosophy at Bethel College, USA. His books include The Routledge Companion to Philosophy of Religion (2nd ed. 2012, with Paul Copan), Christian Thought: A Historical Introduction (2010, with J. B. Stump), Introducing Philosophy of Religion (2009) and The Philosophy of Religion Reader (2007).

James Beilby is a professor in the Department of Biblical and Theological Studies at Bethel University, USA. His previous publications include Naturalism Defeated? (2002), Epistemology as Theology (2006) and The Historical Jesus: Five Views (2010, with Paul Eddy).