

Contents

Chapter One Introduction: Placiality of Tibet — 1

- 1.1 Contextualizing Tibet as a “Hot Spot” and a “Power Place” — 8
- 1.2 Mindscaping the Tibetan landscape — 16
 - 1.2.1 Mindscape — 20
 - 1.2.2 Landscape, place, and placiality — 21
 - 1.2.3 Eco-aesthetics — 24
 - 1.2.4 Affordances — 26
- 1.3 A geographic navigation of my fieldwork — 28
 - 1.3.1 Beijing — 29
 - 1.3.2 Qinghai — 32
 - 1.3.3 Lhasa and Shangrila — 35
- 1.4 Mapping the book — 38

Chapter Two Geopoetics of place, gods, and people in Sambha (སུམ་པ་) — 43

- 2.1 Eco-aesthetics of an outsider looking in — 43
- 2.2 Geopoetic affordances of the Tibetan landscape — 47
- 2.3 Sambha mandalized — 52
- 2.4 Inter-dwelling with gods and spirits — 58
- 2.5 Ancestral rootedness of Sambha and beyond — 63
- 2.6 “Place has its own being...” — 68

Chapter Three Confessions of an Inner Liberation — 71

- 3.1 The second Long March — 75
- 3.2 Elation and desolation in the eco-sublime Tibetan landscape — 79
- 3.3 Communist “liberation theology” — 83
- 3.4 Puzzling statistics and the social scene of Old Lhasa — 87
- 3.5 Searching for serfs in the midst of the “black bones” and the “white bones” — 88
- 3.6 The clash of Marxist class struggle and Buddhist fate — 92
- 3.7 Reminiscing about Old Tibet’s enchantments — 93

Chapter Four Memorability of place among anti-traditionalists — 98

- 4.1 “Pulling one hair moves the entire body” — 99
- 4.2 Forgetting as Remembering — 105
- 4.3 Subalternity of radical modernism — 113
- 4.4 Pathogenic force of modernity — 117
- 4.5 Placial antecedence of the Subaltern — 123

Chapter Five Touching the skin of modern Tibet in the New Tibetan Cinema — 128

- 5.1 Initiating cinematic landscape of a Buddhist Tibet — 129
 - 5.1.1 Repairing Buddhist moral fabric in The Grassland — 129
 - 5.1.2 Landscaping Buddhism in The Silent Holy Stone — 134
- 5.2 Touching the Skin of the Modern Tibetan Landscape — 137
 - 5.2.1 Rescuing the Buddhist “soul” of the nation in The Search — 139
 - 5.2.2 A modern Tibet in Old Dog — 143
- 5.3 After-effects and affordances of the New Tibetan Cinema — 149

Chapter Six Ensouling the Mountain — 156

- 6.1 “Wherever I travel I can’t wait to rush home!” — 157
- 6.2 “You know the origin of my ancestors” — 163
- 6.3 “Machen Bomra [མཚན་བོ་མ་རྩ་] is a living being” — 168
- 6.4 “Bury them here...” — 174
- 6.5 “Eco-aesthetics of Touching and Being Touched” — 178

Chapter Seven Drifting in the Mirages of the Tibetan Landscape — 183

- 7.1 Tibet, branding a mindscape of utopia — 185
 - 7.1.1 An American experience — 185
 - 7.1.2 A Chinese experience — 189
- 7.2 Tibet, branded as a dreamworld — 191
- 7.3 Seeking material empowerments in the dreamworld — 195
- 7.4 Drifting in the Mirages of the Tibetan Landscape — 200
 - 7.4.1 Geo-poetic affordance — 200
 - 7.4.2 Utopian attributes of Tibet — 203
 - 7.4.3 Escape, self-exile and metamorphosis in “magical Tibet” — 204

Chapter Eight Conclusion – Mindscaping Tibetophilia — 212

- 8.1 The missing Orient in Post-Orientalism — 214
- 8.2 Tibet as a geopsychic terrain — 218
- 8.3 Tibetophilia, topophilia, and eco-aesthetics revisited — 222
- 8.4 An anthropological mindscape of Tibet — 225

References — 231

Index — 246