
CATASTROPHIC THINKING

Extinction and the Value of Diversity from Darwin to the Anthropocene

David Sepkoski

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS
CHICAGO AND LONDON

CONTENTS

Introduction: Why Extinction Matters	1
1 The Meaning of Extinction: Catastrophe, Equilibrium, and Diversity	17
2 Extinction in a Victorian Key	47
3 Catastrophe and Modernity	83
4 Extinction in the Shadow of the Bomb	127
5 The Asteroid and the Dinosaur	169
6 A Sixth Extinction? The Making of a Biodiversity Crisis	229
Epilogue: Extinction in the Anthropocene	295
Acknowledgments	309
Notes	313
Works Cited	327
Index	343