

Contents

List of Tables and Charts	ix
List of Maps	x
Acknowledgements	xi
Abbreviations	xiv
Introduction	1
PART I: Space–Circulation–Infrastructure: Conceptualising the Social History of Transport in Colonial India
2 Space–Society–History	19
Hypothesis 1: Production	25
Hypothesis 2: Conflict	30
Hypothesis 3: Historicity	36
Hypothesis 4: Relativity	40
Hypothesis 5: Compression	48
Hypothesis 6: Disparity	53
Hypothesis 7: Rhythm	61
3 Circulation and Infrastructure	66
Circulation, Communication and Transport	66
Infrastructure, ‘Public Works’ and ‘Productivity’	79
PART II: Circulatory Regimes and ‘Public Works’: The Case of Colonial Orissa in the Long Nineteenth Century
4 Patterns of Circulation and Modes of Transport in Ancien Régime Orissa	119
Along the Coast, Across the Plains and Uplands: The NE–SW Axis	125
Following the Rivers: The W–ESE Axis	127
Points of Intersection and the Network of Circulation	130

Rhythms of Circulation	134
The Intensity of Circulation	144
An Ancien Régime of Circulation	151
5 Who Needs a Road? Circulation, Society and the East India Company	154
Colonial Priorities: Securing Communications and Quelling Insurgency	156
Exigencies of Local Power: The Uses and Dangers of Roads	162
Plebeian Perspectives: Circulation and Coercion	175
6 Early Colonialism, ‘Public Works’ and the Orissa Famine’	186
The Orissa Famine and the Problem of Circulation	186
‘Free Communication’: Infrastructure Policy before the 1850s	196
Imperial and Cotton Roads of the 1850s and 1860s	204
Reconceiving a Circulatory Regime: ‘Public Works’ before the Famine	216
7 Circulation and Infrastructure in the Times of Colonial Capitalism	224
Commercialisation and the Circulatory Regime	225
‘Public Works’ and the Reorganisation of Social Space: Roads and Canals	237
‘Public Works’ and the Reorganisation of Social Space: Railways	247
Pilgrims and Railways: An ‘Unreasonable’ Appropriation	258
8 Kings, Commerce and Corvée in the Tributary States	270
Commercial Kingdoms and Improving Rajas	270
Unsanctioned Mobilities and the Violence of ‘Public Works’	283
The Reinvention of Bethi	290
Conclusion	301
Glossary	324
Bibliography	327
Index	351