

CONTENTS

Foreword, ix

MARK ANDREJEVIC

Acknowledgments, xix

Introduction, 1

Feminist Surveillance Studies: Critical Interventions

RACHEL E. DUBROFSKY AND SHOSHANA AMIELLE MAGNET

PART I. SURVEILLANCE AS FOUNDATIONAL STRUCTURE

1. Not-Seeing, 21

State Surveillance, Settler Colonialism, and Gender Violence

ANDREA SMITH

2. Surveillance and the Work of Antitrafficking, 39

From Compulsory Examination to International Coordination

LAURA HYUN YI KANG

3. Legally Sexed, 58

Birth Certificates and Transgender Citizens

LISA JEAN MOORE AND PAISLEY CURRAH

PART II. THE VISUAL AND SURVEILLANCE: BODIES ON DISPLAY

4. Violating In/Visibilities, 79

Honor Killings and Interlocking Surveillance(s)

YASMIN JIWANI

5. Gender, Race, and Authenticity, 93

Celebrity Women Tweeting for the Gaze

RACHEL E. DUBROFSKY AND MEGAN M. WOOD

6. Held in the Light, 107

Reading Images of Rihanna's Domestic Abuse

KELLI D. MOORE

PART III. BIOMETRIC TECHNOLOGIES AS SURVEILLANCE ASSEMBLAGES

7. Terror and the Female Grotesque, 127

Introducing Full-Body Scanners to U.S. Airports

RACHEL HALL

8. The Public Fetus and the Veiled Woman, 150

Transnational Surrogacy Blogs as Surveillant Assemblage

SAYANTANI DASGUPTA AND SHAMITA DAS DASGUPTA

9. Race, Gender, and Genetic Technologies, 169

A New Reproductive Dystopia?

DOROTHY E. ROBERTS

PART IV. TOWARD A FEMINIST PRAXIS IN SURVEILLANCE STUDIES

10. Antiprostitution Feminism and the
Surveillance of Sex Industry Clients, 189

UMMNI KHAN

11. Research Methods, Institutional Ethnography, and Feminist Surveillance Studies, 208

KEVIN WALBY AND SEANTEL ANAÏS

Afterword, 221

Blaming, Shaming, and the Feminization of Social Media

LISA NAKAMURA

References, 229

Contributors, 265

Index, 271