

Valeska Henze

Improving Future(s)

Youth Imagery as Representations of the Political Cultures
in Sweden and Poland

BWV • BERLINER
WISSENSCHAFTS-VERLAG

Contents

1 The Beginning	7
2 Inspection of Theory: Political Culture, Social Time, Youth	11
2.1 Accessing Societal Future(s)	11
2.1.1 Political Culture and the Institutionalisation of Time	11
2.1.2 Beginning and Finitude	20
2.1.2.1 Modernity and Exclusion of Death	27
2.1.2.2 Hero Systems and Denial of Death	30
2.2. Conceptualising Youth – a Contested Territory	33
2.2.1 Youth in Social Sciences	36
2.2.1.1 Standardising Youth	36
2.2.1.2 From Role Models to Opulent Role Menues	44
2.2.2. Youth and Social Transformation	49
2.2.2.1 Socialising Citizens	49
2.2.2.2 Ideology of Change	54
2.3. Methodological Memo	63
3 Sweden: Youth – a Resource for Welfare Society	69
3.1 Capitalisation of (Human) Resources	71
3.1.1 Education, a Matter of Disciplining	72
3.1.1.1 Ellen Key: “The time will come in which the child will be looked upon as holy ...”	83
3.1.1.2 Alva Myrdal: “Thus the quality of the new generation can be and must be safeguarded by society, thereby safeguarding its own future.”	88
3.1.2 The ‘Making of Society’: Swedish School System and Reforms	100
3.1.3 Being a Resource – Bringing Youth to an End?	109
3.2 Discarded Youth: Inside the Storeroom of Welfare Society	121
3.2.1 Resources in Welfare Society: Accounting for a Double-bind Function	121
3.2.2 Resource: Work-force – Maintaining Society	132
3.2.3 The Other of Resource	143
3.2.3.1 Re-defining Integration Policy	145
3.2.3.2 Re-defining Society?	151

4 Poland: Hero, Worker, Disciple – in the Clutches of a National Tale of Fate	157
4.1 Generation and Collective Memory	164
4.2 “Poland has not yet perished”	171
4.2.1 Romantic Youth – the Fighting Hero	171
4.2.2 Polish Positivists and National Democrats – Between National Hero and Socialist Worker	179
4.2.3 Socialist Youth – the Unfailing Worker	188
4.2.4 Religious Youth – the Devoted Believer	195
4.3 “Daddy I am the lost generation.” – “Me too.”	205
4.3.1 Lost in Time and Space ...	207
4.3.2 ... Creating Time and Space	213
4.3.2.1 Young Communists, Students, Intelligentsia	215
4.3.2.2 Nationalist and Catholic Opposition	221
4.3.2.3 Pomarańczowa Alternatywa (PA), Youth Cultures	226
4.3.3 From the Lost Generation to the ‘Generation without Fear’	232
5 “Where an order is maintained endlessly, there will be death” – The End.	241
5.1 Youth as Social Group and Ordering Element of Society	243
5.2 Picturing Age and Structuring Life	252
5.3 The Appeal of Youth	259
5.3.1 A Transitional Status	260
5.3.2 A Shapeable Status	263
5.3.3 Youthful Strength	265
5.4 Youth is a Ground-power of the Social-historical Imaginary	268
5.4.1 Youth as Social Meaning	268
5.4.2 Position in Time	272
5.4.3 Experience of Time	274
5.5 Social Order in the Light of Finitude	276
6 Appendix	293
6.1 Sweden: Development of Population 1900–2007	293
6.2 Chronology of Polish Historical Dates relevant to this Thesis	295
6.3 Polish Abbreviations and Terms used in the Text	297
7 Publication Bibliography	298