

Power, Politics and Voting Behaviour

An Introduction to the Sociology of Politics

Mike Riley

*Senior Lecturer in Social Science
Milton Keynes College*

HARVESTER • WHEATSHEAF
NEW YORK LONDON TORONTO SYDNEY TOKYO

Contents

Figures	ix
Tables	x
Maps	xiii
Preface	xv
Acknowledgements	xvii
Introduction	1
Part I: Theories of power	13
Glossary of key terms	15
1 The Democratic Pluralist Theory of Power	19
1.1 Criticisms of democratic pluralism	25
2 The Elite Theory of Power	41
2.1 The politics of economic elitism	42
2.2 Financial origins and political destinations. Elitism and Conservative cabinets	43
2.21 The Conservative party and the City of London	56
2.3 Elitism and the management of the masses	67
2.31 Limited participation in politics	71
2.32 The narrowing of issues for discussion	72
2.33 Non-decision making	74
2.34 Elitism and non-decision making. The monarchy as a case in point	76
2.4 The power of patronage and elite migration	89
2.5 Elites and the process of coverture	104
2.6 Criticisms of elite theory	118
3 The Corporatist Theory of Power	134
3.1 Corporatism in British politics	135
3.2 The Japanese command economy. A study in applied corporatism	145
3.21 Japan's power structures. MITI, the LPD and corporatist planning	150
3.22 Centralised power and its consequences	154
3.23 Summary. The limitations of corporatist Japan	160
3.3 Criticisms of corporatist theory	161

3.4	Summary. Britain as a corporatist state in the 1990s?	171
4	The Marxist View of Power	177
4.1	Classical Marxism	177
4.2	Neo-Marxism and parliamentary power. The contemporary view	181
4.3	The distribution of income and wealth	184
4.4	The hegemonic debate	194
4.41	The Thatcher years. A Marxist view of the political appeal of radical Toryism	197
4.42	A Marxist critique of post-1979 policies. The politics of sequestration	202
4.43	The conservative public housing revolution. The hegemony of a 'property-owning democracy'	212
4.44	The redistribution of productive property. A share-owning democracy?	218
4.45	The privatisation of the TSB and British Gas. A bourgeois or proletarian revolution?	224
4.46	Marxism, capitalist democracy and radical conservatism. A summary	232
4.5	Criticisms of Marxist theory	234
	Part II: Theories of Voting	247
5	Theories of Voting	249
	Glossary of key terms	251
5.1	Electoral volatility during the twentieth century	252
5.2	The democratic pluralist theory of voting realignments	267
5.21	The expressive or party identification model	269
5.22	The consumer, rational choice model	273
5.23	Issue voting and the 1987 general election. A paradox	279
5.3	Voting behaviour and democratic pluralism. An assessment	281
5.31	Criticisms of I. Crewe's rational choice theory	284
5.4	Voting behaviour and conflict theory	294
5.41	The structuralist explanation of the volatile labour voter	301
5.5	The interactionist analysis of voting behaviour	315
5.51	How Britain votes. The interactionist view	321
5.6	The radical analysis of voting behaviour	329
5.7	Summary. Towards the 1990s	333
6	Conclusion. The Patrician State	342
	Appendices	347
	Bibliography	366
	Name Index	385
	Subject Index	387