Contents

Acknowledgements		page viii
1	Why anthropologists cannot avoid cognitive issues and what they gain from these	1
2	Innateness and social scientists' fears	14
3	How anthropology abandoned a naturalist epistemology cognitive perspective on the history of anthropology	: a 24
4	The nature/culture wars	44
5	Time and the anthropologists	79
6	Reconciling social science and cognitive science notions of the 'self'	of 117
7	What goes without saying	143
8	Memory	186
References		218
Index		230