

Contents

Acknowledgments	xi
Introduction	1
The discourse of law and society	1
Modern legalism and the fact of pluralism in Indonesia	2
Theoretical approach	7
Significance and scope of the study	10
PART I
State law versus popular law in historical retrospect	15
1 Law and colonialism in Indonesia	17
European positivism and legal underpinnings of colonialism	17
The Dutch colonial mode of "lawfare"	24
Colonial versus popular legal traditions	40
2 Pluralism and the ideal of legal nationalism	49
Law and legal debates in the early process of constitutional law-making	49
The strengthened state law tradition in the midst of legal polycentricism	61
3 A strong regime and state law pluralism	86
National law philosophy and legal pluralism theory	86
Continuity and change in the state's recognition of legal pluralism	108

PART II

Conflicts of law as a result of pluralism and the state's attempt at resolution 123

4 Interpersonal law and the mission of legal uniformity 125

The colonial legacy of interpersonal law 125

The demise of intergentiel recht? 132

The legislative efforts of resolution in private interpersonal law 137

5 Resolution of interpersonal cases in the courts:
the work of national legal postulates 156

Interfaith marriage 156

Interfaith inheritance 167

Gendered inheritance 184

Theoretical reflections 198

Differences in the logic of law-making and methods of rapprochement 198

Substantive conflicts of law and their more subtle resolutions 202

Lessons for the future 207

Notes 211

Bibliography 251

Legislation, cases and other materials 265

Index 269