

Zeitschrift für Vergleichende Politikwissenschaft

7. Jahrgang Supplement 1 Special Issue 3 Dezember 2013

Tobias Debiel/Andrea Gawrich

(Dys-)Functionalities of corruption: comparative perspectives and methodological pluralism	1
---	----------

A. Conceptual Approaches and Methodological Pluralism

Florian Bader/Patrick von Maravić/B. Guy Peters/Michael Tauch

Corruption, method choice, and constraints—exploring methodological pluralism in corruption research	13
---	-----------

Wolfgang Muno

Clientelist corruption networks: conceptual and empirical approaches	33
---	-----------

B. Political Rule, Governance and Growth

Christian von Soest

Persistent systemic corruption: why democratisation and economic liberalisation have failed to undo an old evil. A six-country analysis	57
--	-----------

Markus Taube

Relational corruption in the PR China. Institutional foundations and its (dys-)functionality for economic development and growth	89
---	-----------

C. Corruption and Citizens' Attitudes

Ina Kubbe

Corruption and trust: a model design	117
---	------------

Daniel Stockemer/Aksel Sundström

Corruption and citizens' satisfaction with democracy in Europe: what is the empirical linkage?	137
---	------------

Simone Bohn

Justifying corrupt exchanges: rational-choice corruptors	159
---	------------

D. Policies and Norms of Anti-Corruption

Nicole Gallina

Anti-corruption revisited: the case of the Czech Republic and Slovakia	183
---	------------

Christian Göbel

Warriors unchained: critical junctures and anti-corruption in Taiwan and South Korea	219
---	------------

Anja P. Jakobi

The changing global norm of anti-corruption: from bad business to bad government	243
---	------------