

Contents

List of Contributors	xvii
Introduction	1
Ana Aliverti, Henrique Carvalho, Anastasia Chamberlen, and Máximo Sozzo
Overview	1
References	11
1. UNSETTLING CONCEPTS AND PERSPECTIVES
1. Decoloniality, Abolitionism, and the Disruption of Penal Power	19
Chris Cunneen
Introduction	19
Global State Violence and Unknowing Criminology	21
Criminological Innocence	24
Decolonial Knowledges	26
Strategies for Decolonial Activism	28
Conclusion	31
References	32
2. Abolition and (De)colonization: Cutting the Criminal Question's Gordian Knot	37
J. M. Moore
Introduction	37
A Decolonized Criminal Question? A Decolonized Criminology?	38
Colonialism, Justice, and the Concept of Crime	39
Criminology, its Colonial Origins, and its Relationship with the State	42
'Race' and the Invention of the Criminal	44
Beyond the Criminal Question: The Need for a Decolonial Abolitionist Praxis	46
References	49
3. The Weight of Empire: Crime, Violence, and Social Control in Latin America—and the Promise of Southern Criminology	53
Manuel Iturralde
Introduction	53
The Southern Criminology Project	55
A Critical Elaboration of Southern Criminology: Capitalism, Colonialism, and Empire	57
The Latin American Crime Control Fields: A Southern Perspective	58

Crime and Violence Under the Colonial Matrix of Power	59
Imprisonment as a Form of Penal Excess Against Marginalized Groups	60
Militarized Policing and the Upsurge of Police Brutality in Recent Times: The Covid-19 Pandemic	61
State Building, State Capacity, and Links with Crime and Punishment in Latin America	63
Conclusion: From the Punitive Turn to the Decolonial Turn	65
References	67
4. From Genocidal Imperialist Despotism to Genocidal Neocolonial Dictatorship: Decolonizing Criminology and Criminal Justice with Indigenous Models of Democratization	71
Biko Agozino
Introduction	71
Decolonization as Resistance Against Colonization	75
European Colonial Despotism and Resistance	77
Conclusion	81
References	83
 2. CONTEXTUALIZING THE CRIMINAL QUESTION
5. A Postcolonial Condition of Policing?: Exploring Policing and Social Movements in Pakistan and Nigeria	89
Zoha Waseem
Introduction	89
A Framework for Postcolonial Policing	91
Pakistan	94
Pashtun Tahaffuz Movement	96
Persistence of PCP in Pakistan	97
Nigeria	99
#EndSARS	101
Persistence of PCP in Nigeria	102
Conclusion	103
References	104
6. Extrajudicial Punishment and the Criminal Question: The Case of 'Postcolonial' South Africa	107
Gail Super
Introduction	107
Extrajudicial Punishment and the Abdication of Liberal Law During Colonialism and Apartheid	108
Extrajudicial Punishment (in Prisons and Elsewhere) Post-1994	110
Makwanyane	110
Arrest and bail as extrajudicial punishment	112
Civilian-Led Extrajudicial Punishment in Informal Settlements and Former Black Townships	114
'Repertoires of violence'	116

Conclusion	117
References	119
7. Carceral Cultures in Contemporary India	125
Mahuya Bandyopadhyay
Introduction	125
A Decolonial Perspective—Introductory Remarks	126
Carceral Culture and the Chaotic Everyday in Prison	127
Vignettes of Carceral Spillovers	129
Carceral Culture and the Politics of Disposability	131
Is a Decolonial Perspective Possible?	134
References	139
3. LOCATING COLONIAL DURESS
8. 'Muslims Have No Borders, Only Horizons': A Genealogy of Border Criminality in Algeria and France, 1844 to Present	145
Sarah Ghabrial
Introduction	145
Imagining and Producing the 'Borderless' Muslim	148
The Administrative Internment Regime (1840s–1914)	150
Afterlives of Internment	154
Conclusion: What Is to Be Done?	158
References	159
9. The Coloniality of Justice: Naturalized Divisions During Pre-Trial Hearings in Brazil	163
Omar Phoenix Khan
Introduction	163
Citizenship and the Colonial Period	164
Coloniality and Citizenship	165
Analysis	167
Space and Place	168
Boundaried Citizenship	170
Whiteness as the Point of Departure	172
Normalization of Black Pain and Death	174
Discussion	175
Temporal Dimension	176
Spatial Dimension	176
Subjective Dimension	177
References	178
10. Contextualizing Racialized Exclusion and Criminalization in Postcolonial Israel: Policing of Israeli Ethiopian Citizens and Detention of Sudanese and Eritrean Asylum Seekers	181
Maayan Ravid
Introduction	181

A Note on Methods and Scope	183
Socio-Historical Context—An Ethnonational Settler State	184
The Policing of Ethiopian Jewish Citizens	187
Detention of Asylum Seekers from Sudan and Eritrea	190
Connecting Racialized Exclusions	192
Conclusion	192
References	193
11. Coloniality and Structural Violence in the Criminalization of Black and Indigenous Populations in Brazil	201
Hugo Leonardo Rodrigues Santos
Introduction: Coloniality and the Criminalization of the Subaltern	201
Brazil has a Huge Past Ahead	202
The Authoritarian Republican Progress	204
The Integration of the Indigenous People by Means of Punishment	207
Racial Selectivity in Brazilian Policing	210
Conclusion	213
References	214
4. MAPPING GLOBAL CONNECTIONS
12. Emancipatory Pathways or Postcolonial Pitfalls?: Navigating Global Policing Mobilities Through the Atlantic Archipelago of Cape Verde	219
Conor O'Reilly
Introduction	219
Cape Verde and Decolonizing Policing Scholarship	222
Qualifying Cape Verdean Exceptionalism	223
Morabeza for Transnational Policing?	225
Occidental 'Policeness' and Subaltern Global Cops	229
International Broker or Postcolonial Intermediary? Atlantic Policing of Global Insecurities	230
'If They Build It, Will They Come?' An International Police Academy for Cape Verde	233
Conclusion	235
References	236
13. 'Nothing is Lost, Everything is ... Transferred': Transnational Institutionalization and Ideological Legitimation of Torture as a Neocolonial State Crime	241
Melanie Collard
Introduction	241
The Algerian 'War of Decolonization' (1954–1962)	243
The Argentine Dirty War (1976–1983)	245
Neocolonialism as the Rationale Behind the Transnational Institutionalization and Ideological Legitimation of Torture	248

Conclusion	251
References	252
14. The Legacy of Colonial Patriarchy in the Current Administration of the Malaysian Death Penalty: The Hyper-Sentencing of Foreign National Women to Death for Drug Trafficking	257
Lucy Harry
Introduction	257
Scholarship on Capital Punishment and Colonization	258
An Overview of the Current Scope and Application of the Malaysian Death Penalty	259
The Double Colonial Legacy: Two Converging Histories	261
The Research Problem: The Death Penalty for Drug Trafficking as a Modern Manifestation of Colonial Patriarchy and Penalty	263
The hyper-sentencing of foreign national women for drug trafficking	264
'Securitization' in response to the 'foreign threat' of drug trafficking	267
Conclusion	269
References	270
5. MOVING FORWARD: NEW METHODS AND APPROACHES
15. Criminal Questions, Colonial Hinterlands, Personal Experience: A Symptomatic Reading	277
Rod Earle, Alpa Parmar, and Coretta Phillips
Introduction	277
Methodological Approach—Symptomatic Reading	278
Cairo's Jamaican Excursions and Versions	280
Imperializing Merton?	281
Rafan's Criminal Justice Rejections and Recreations	282
The postcolony	283
Warren: Transnational Whiteness Refusing to be Seen	285
'Don't get me white'? racial routes in and out of Zimbabwe, London, and Essex	286
Accents of colonial hierarchy, evidence of whiteness	287
Conclusions: Colonial Violence, White Innocence, Criminal Questions	288
Making connections: coloniality and criminology	290
References	290
16. Ayllu and Mestizaje : A Decolonial Feminist View of Women's Imprisonment in Peru	293
Lucia Bracco Bruce
Introduction	293
The Modern-Colonial-Patriarchal Structure	294
Race, Gender, and Imprisonment: The Modern-Colonial-Patriarchal Penitentiary	296

Ayllu and Mestizaje : Women in Contemporary Prisons in Lima, Peru	297
Ayllu : A Communitarian Organizational System within Santa Monica	298
Mestizas and Mestizaje : About the 'Race'-Ethnic-Cultural Dimension in Prison	303
Conclusion: Final Reflections	306
References	307
17. An Alternative Spotlight: Colonial Legacies, Therapeutic Jurisprudence, and the Enigma of Healing	311
Amanda Wilson
Introduction	311
The therapeutic jurisprudence approach	312
Colonial Legacies: A Case Study of Therapeutic Jurisprudence Applied	313
Cultural tokenism	314
Assimilation through subjugation	316
Colonial consciousness	319
The Enigma of Healing	321
Conclusion	323
References	325
18. In Our Experience: Recognizing and Challenging Cognitive Imperialism	329
Kwan-Lamar Blount-Hill and Ahmed Ajil
Introduction: Colonization and Cognitive Imperialism	329
Experiencing criminal justice academe: the data	332
Recognizing and Reflecting on Cognitive Imperialism	334
Reorienting and Responding to Cognitive Imperialism	337
Recover and Reform: Seeking Constructive Ways Forward	339
Conclusion	341
References	342
Conclusion: Teasing Out the Criminal Question, Building a Decolonizing Horizon	347
Ana Aliverti, Henrique Carvalho, Anastasia Chamberlen, and Máximo Sozzo
Overview	347
Problematizing and Dismantling Dynamics of Hierarchization, Subordination, and Dependency in Knowledge Production and Circulation	348
Continuities, Discontinuities, Permutations, and Erasures in the Colonial Matrix of the Criminal Question	352
Methodological Approaches: Reflexivity, Narratives of Resistance and Enduring Struggles	354
Politics and Ethics	357
References	359
Index	363