

Contents

Acknowledgements	page ix
Maps	xi
1 Introduction	I
Law, women, and gender	2
Islamic law	II
Islamic law and gender	24
2 Woman as wife and man as husband: making the marital bargain	38
Islamic marriage: the legal tradition	41
Islamic marriage: pre-twentieth-century practices	59
Reform and marriage	65
Recent developments	77
Conclusion	82
3 Woman and man as divorced: asserting rights	84
Islamic divorce: the legal tradition	86
Islamic divorce: pre-twentieth-century practices	104
Reform and divorce	111
Recent developments	124
Conclusion	130
4 Woman and man as legal subjects: managing and testifying	133
Legal capacity and the Islamic juridical tradition	135
The pre-twentieth-century legal subject	149
Reform and the legal subject	159
Recent developments	168
Conclusion	172
5 Woman and man in gendered space: submitting	175
Space, sexuality, and the Islamic juridical tradition	177
The regulation of space and sexuality prior to the twentieth century	191

Reform, space, and sexuality	200
Recent developments	206
Conclusion	215
6 Conclusion	218
Glossary	226
Bibliography	232
Suggestions for further reading	244
Index	247