

Contents

Preface	page ix
Table of cases	xi
1 What is 'law and religion'?	1
Introduction	1
The growth of law and religion	2
Defining law and religion	5
The external and internal aspects of law and religion	5
The inadequacy of other terms	7
Religion law	10
Religious law	12
Conclusions	14
2 Historical development	17
Introduction	17
The temporal–spiritual partnership	18
The effect of the Norman Conquest	18
The Courts Christian	20
Discrimination and intolerance	23
The English Church	24
The disadvantaging of alternative religion	25
Religious toleration	26
The recognition of difference	27
The effect upon the established Church	28
Positive religious freedom	29
Domestic developments	31
International developments	33
A positive right to religious freedom?	36
Conclusions	37
3 Legal definitions of religion	39
Introduction	39
Registration and charity law	39
The five filters	40
Towards a definition of religion	42
The current position	45

---

Human rights law	46
The reluctance to define	47
The scope of religious freedom provisions	49
The definition of belief	50
Discrimination law	53
The original definition	53
The revised definition	54
The adoption of the human rights jurisprudence	55
Conclusions	57
 4 The legal position of religious groups	 59
Introduction	59
The Church of England	60
The Church and the Monarch	61
The Church and Parliament	61
The Church and the courts	64
The Church and public ministry	65
Challenges to establishment	66
A milder form of establishment: the Church of Scotland	70
Non-established religious groups	72
The doctrine of consensual compact	72
The principle of non-interference	74
The Forbes v. Eden exception	76
Conclusions	77
 5 Religious freedom as a human right	 81
Introduction	81
Article 9 of the ECHR	82
Article 9(1): the question of interference	83
The definition of belief filter	83
The manifestation/motivation requirement	84
The specific situation rule	84
Article 9(2): the question of justification	86
The rise of article 9 in domestic jurisprudence	87
The House of Lords decision in Williamson	87
Lower court decisions following Williamson	89
The fall of article 9 in domestic jurisprudence	89
The House of Lords decision in Begum	90
Lower court decisions following Begum	92
Exceptions to the rule	94
The significance of Watkins-Singh	96
Conclusions	98
 6 Discrimination on grounds of religion	 100
Introduction	100

---

The legal framework	100
The Equality Act 2010	101
Defining religion or belief	102
Victimisation and harassment	103
Direct discrimination	104
Making a prima facie case	105
The focus upon the respondent	107
A restrictive approach	108
Indirect discrimination	108
Successful claims concerning working hours	109
Successful claims concerning religious dress	109
Unsuccessful claims which failed on grounds of justification	110
Unsuccessful claims which failed on grounds of interference	112
The interaction with Article 9	114
Religious exceptions	117
Employment exceptions	119
Goods and services exceptions	123
Conclusions	128
7 Religious offences	131
Introduction	131
The old religious offences	131
The common law offence of blasphemy	133
The road to abolition	135
Jerry Springer : the court case	138
The right to blaspheme	139
The new religious offences	141
Religious hatred	142
Religiously aggravated offences	144
Conclusions	147
8 Religion in schools	150
Introduction	150
The school system	151
Maintained schools	151
Independent schools	152
Schools without a religious character	153
Religious education	154
Religious worship	157
A satisfactory compromise?	158
Schools with a religious character	160
State-maintained schools with a religious character	161
Independent schools with a religious character	165
Conclusions	166

9 Religious law	169
Introduction	169
Defining religious law	170
A purpose-based definition	172
A source-based definition	174
A subject-based definition	176
A pedagogical definition	178
Huxley's OWL	180
The recognition of religious law	182
Recognition as a matter of fact	183
Recognition through state law	183
Recognition by the Arbitration Act 1996	184
Recognition through private international law	189
Conclusions	189
 10 The clash of arms	 191
Introduction	191
Emerging trends	193
The juridification of religion	193
The rise of religion law	195
Pressure points	197
The curse of Begum	198
Judging religious doctrine	200
The tension between the old and the new	202
Conclusions	204
 Index	 210