

Contents

List of illustrations	page vii
List of tables	x
Acknowledgements	xi
Abbreviations	xiv
Introduction	1
Part I Propaganda representations of violence against prisoners	29
1 Encountering the ‘enemy’: civilian violence towards prisoners of war in 1914	33
2 Legitimate and illegitimate violence against prisoners: representations of atrocity, 1914–16	70
Part II Violence and prisoner of war forced labour	121
3 The development of prisoner of war labour companies on the western front: the spring reprisals of 1917	127
4 From discipline to retribution: violence in German prisoner of war labour companies in 1918	167
5 Inevitable escalation? British and French treatment of forced prisoner labour, 1917–18	223
Part III The end of violence? Repatriation and remembrance	253
6 Contested homecomings: prisoner repatriation and the formation of memory, 1918–21	257

7	La Grande Illusion : the interwar historicisation of violence against prisoners of war, 1922–39	315
	Epilogue: the legacy of First World War captivity in 1939–45	356
	Conclusion	371
	Glossary of foreign terms	377
	Bibliography	378
	Index	440