

Contents

|   |     |
|---|-----|
| Acknowledgements  | vii |
| Introduction  |     |
| The Use of History for Thinking About Morality and War                                      | 1   |
| PART I: TWO MORAL TRADITIONS ON THE USE OF ARMED FORCE                           |     |
| 1 The Just War Idea in Historical Tradition and Current Debate                              | 15  |
| 2 Just War: Breaking the Tradition  | 37  |
| 3 Just War and Jihad : Two Traditions on the Use of Force                            | 49  |
| 4 Tracing the Contours of the Jihad of Individual Duty in Islamic Juristic Tradition | 63  |
| PART II: JUST WAR AND INTERNATIONAL LAW  |     |
| 5 Grotius' Use of History and Charity in the Modern Transformation of the Just War Idea     | 75  |
| 6 Looking Back as a Way of Going Forward: Just War Tradition and International Law          | 87  |
| PART III: JUST WAR AND POLITICAL REALISM   |     |
| 7 Moral Judgment in International Affairs: The Limits of Realism                            | 103 |
| 8 Reinhold Niebuhr's Christian Realism and the Idea of Just War                             | 117 |

PART IV: PRESSING CONTEMPORARY PROBLEMS

|    |   |     |
|----|---|-----|
| 9  | The Idea of Defense in Historical and Contemporary Thinkingabout Just War | 129 |
| 10 | Contemporary Warfare and the Challenge to Efforts at Restraint                | 139 |
| 11 | The Use of Armed Force and the Goal of Peace                                  | 151 |
|    | Bibliography   | 167 |
|    | Index  | 173 |