

CONTENTS

Preface to the second edition	page xiii
Preface to the first edition	xv

I Introduction	I
1.1 Sociolinguistics	I
1.1.1 A description	I
1.1.2 Sociolinguistics and linguistics	2
1.1.3 Sociolinguistics and the sociology of language	4
1.2 Sociolinguistic phenomena	5
1.2.1 An imaginary world	5
1.2.2 A real but exotic world	6
1.2.3 A real and familiar world	9
1.3 Speakers and communities	10
1.3.1 Conformity and individualism	10
1.3.2 The sociolinguistic development of the child	14
1.4 Summary and conclusions	17
 2 Varieties of language	 20
2.1 Introduction	20
2.1.1 Global and specific statements	20
2.1.2 Linguistic items	21
2.1.3 Varieties of language	22
2.1.4 'Speech communities'	24
2.2 Languages	30
2.2.1 'Language' and 'dialect'	30
2.2.2 Standard languages	32
2.2.3 The delimitation of languages	34
2.2.4 The family tree model	37
2.3 Dialects	38
2.3.1 Regional dialects and isoglosses	38

2.3.2	Diffusion and the wave theory	39
2.3.3	Social dialects	41
2.3.4	Types of linguistic item	43
2.4	Registers	45
2.4.1	Registers and dialects	45
2.4.2	Diglossia	49
2.5	Mixture of varieties	51
2.5.1	Code-switching	51
2.5.2	Code-mixing	53
2.5.3	Borrowing	55
2.5.4	Pidgins	59
2.5.5	Creoles	63
2.6	Conclusions	68
3	Language, culture and thought	70
3.1	Introduction	70
3.1.1	Culture	71
3.1.2	Thought	72
3.1.3	Language, culture and thought	78
3.2	Linguistic and cultural relativity	81
3.2.1	Semantic relativity	81
3.2.2	Prototypes	85
3.2.3	Basic-level concepts	88
3.2.4	Conclusions	90
3.3	Language and thought	91
3.3.1	Language and socialisation	91
3.3.2	The Sapir–Whorf hypothesis	95
3.3.3	Sexism in the language system	102
3.4	General conclusions	104
4	Speech as social interaction	106
4.1	The social nature of speech	106
4.1.1	Introduction	106
4.1.2	The classification of speech	109
4.1.3	Speech as skilled work	112
4.1.4	The norms governing speech	116
4.1.5	Conclusion	119
4.2	Speech as a signal of social identity	120
4.2.1	Non-relational social categories	120
4.2.2	Power and solidarity	122

4.2.3	Linguistic signals of power and solidarity	127
4.3	The structure of speech	132
4.3.1	Entries and exits	132
4.3.2	Other kinds of structure in speech	134
4.4	Verbal and non-verbal behaviour	136
4.4.1	Relation-markers	136
4.4.2	Structure-markers	138
4.4.3	Content-markers	139
4.5	Male/female differences in speech	140
5	The quantitative study of speech	144
5.1	Introduction	144
5.1.1	The scope of quantitative studies of speech	144
5.1.2	Why study speech quantitatively?	148
5.2	Methodology	150
5.2.1	Problems of methodology	150
5.2.2	An example: New York	155
5.2.3	An example: Norwich	159
5.2.4	An example: Belfast	163
5.2.5	An example: Cardiff	164
5.2.6	An example: Detroit	166
5.3	Linguistic variables	169
5.3.1	Types of variable	169
5.3.2	Calculating scores for texts	175
5.3.3	Calculating scores for individuals and groups	177
5.4	Influences on linguistic variables	181
5.4.1	Linguistic context	181
5.4.2	The speaker's group membership	184
5.4.3	The speaker's degree of group membership	190
5.4.4	The speaker's sex	193
5.4.5	The situation and 'style'	199
5.5	Summary	201
6	Linguistic and social inequality	203
6.1	Linguistic inequality	203
6.1.1	Introduction	203
6.1.2	Three types of linguistic inequality	205
6.2	Subjective inequality	206
6.2.1	Language-based prejudice	206
6.2.2	Evaluation of language	209

6.2.3 Stereotypes and how to study them	211
6.2.4 Prejudice of teachers	216
6.2.5 Prejudice of pupils	217
6.3 Linguistic incompetence: strictly linguistic inequality	220
6.4 Communicative incompetence: inequality in communication	224
7 Theoretical summary	228
7.1 Introduction	228
7.2 The social functions of language	230
7.2.1 Face	230
7.2.2 Solidarity and accommodation	232
7.2.3 Networks and multiple models	234
7.2.4 Social types and acts of identity	237
7.2.5 Power	240
7.2.6 Analogue relationships and variability	241
7.3 The structure of language	243
7.3.1 Background	243
7.3.2 The history of the isolation of language	244
7.3.3 Evidence against the isolation of language	245
7.3.4 Two further sources of variability	248
7.3.5 Implications for theories of language structure	252
Bibliography	258
Index	271