

Contents

Preface	ix
Introduction: George Herbert Mead's First Book	xi
Mary Jo Deegan

Part I: The Biologic Individual

1. The Social Character of Instinct	3
2. Social Psychology as Counterpart to Physiological Psychology	9
3. What Social Objects Must Psychology Presuppose?	19
4. Emotion and Instinct	27
5. A Psychological Study of the Use of Stimulants	31

Part II: The Beginning of the Social Act

6. The Problem of Comparative Psychology	45
7. Concerning Animal Perception	59
8. On Perception and Imitation	67
9. The Relation of the Embryological Development to Education	73
10. The Child and His Environment	83

Part III: Education from the Kindergarten to the University

11. The Kindergarten and Play	95
12. The Relation of Play to Education	105
13. On the Social Situation in the School	115
14. The University and the School of Education	123
15. The University and the Elementary Schools	129
16. Science in the High School	137
17. The Teaching of Science in College	149

18. Industrial Education, the Working Man, and the School	161
Notes	175
Bibliography	183
Subject Index	193
Name Index	197