

Contents

Introduction	17
PART ONE: Theory	35
1. Rejected Theories: Essentialism and Marxism as Inadequate Foundations of Body History	35
1.1 Explaining Foucault: Concepts of Corporeality and Power	38
1.1.1 Making Bodies: The Constitutive Effects of Power	38
1.1.2 Controlling Bodies: Interested Knowledge and the Regulative Effect of Power	40
1.2 Problemizing Foucault	42
1.2.1 The Imperfectness of Foucauldian Foundations: The Impossibility of Theoretical Purity	42
1.2.2 Anonymous Power: Neglecting Gender, Race, and Class	43
1.2.3 Feminizing Foucault: Feminist Theory as a Modifier of Foucauldian Structuralism	45
1.3 Reproaches of Nihilism: Materiality and the Subject	47
1.3.1 French Feminist Criticism: Reproaches of Linguistic Monism, or, Denying the „Real“ Body?	48
1.3.2 Taking the Body Seriously: Reclaiming the Authenticity of Postmodern Corporeality	49
1.3.2.1 „If Everything is Discourse, What About the Body?“	49
1.3.2.2 „If Gender [as well as Race] is Constructed, Then Who Is Doing The Constructing?“	50
1.4 Beyond Language: The Body as Effect of History	52
PART TWO: The Constitutive Effect of Discourse: Body-Making in the Old South	57
2. The Medical Body	57
2.1 „Useful Bodies“: Medical Readings of Corporal Matter	59
2.1.1 The Dead Body as Medical Text: Southern Blacks as Objects of Dissection and Display	59

2.1.2	The Living Body as Medical Text: Southern Blacks as Objects of Experimentation and Display	62
2.1.3	The Female Body as Medical Text: Understanding Reproduction	68
2.1.4	Racial Difference and the Gynecological Gaze: Underneath the Blanket?	72
2.2	Writing Difference: The Medical Making of Black Hyper-Bodies and White No-Bodies	73
2.2.1	Simple Bodies: Black „Sturdiness“ and „Stupidity“	74
2.2.2	Writing the Working Machine: Physiology and the Black Body as „Seat of Labor“	76
2.2.3	Not of the Same Stock: Polygenesis and the American School	77
2.2.3.4	Claiming Separate Origin: Anatomic Distinctiveness of the Races	79
2.2.3.5	Scientific Truth, Beauty, and the Beasts: Classical Whiteness vs. the Grotesque Black Body	82
2.2.3.6	Measuring Minds: Cranology and Racist Claims for Intellectual Difference	85
2.3	The Sick Body: Disease as a Race-Transcending Equalizer of Corporealities?	87
2.3.1	Reminders of the Flesh: Sickness and the Upper-Class White Body	88
2.3.2	The Absence of Equality: White Patients and Black Sick Bodies	91
2.3.3	The White Somatic Condition: Elevating the Soul over the Body	92
2.3.4	Avoiding the Body-Reminder: Prophylactic Environmental Discourse	95
2.4	Antebellum Medical Ideologies: The Treatment of the Sick Body	100
2.4.1	Galenian Medicine: Highlighting the Surface Body	100
2.4.2	The End of Heroic Medicine: From the Inflicted Body to Soft Remedies	101
2.4.3	Entering the Body: New Drugs and the Declining Significance of the Surface Body	104
2.4.4	Paying the Price for White Cure: The Continuity of Black Embodiment	107
2.5	Anesthesia and Corporal Perception: New Dimensions in Body Mapping	109
2.5.1	Anesthetic Beginnings: Pain Killers and the Sedated Body	110
2.5.2	A Southern Invention: Anesthesia and the Unfelt Flesh	112
2.5.3	Mapping Perception: Reading the Anesthetic Body	115
2.5.4	The „Calculus of Suffering“: Race, Gender, and the Body in Pain	118
3.	The Sexual Body	123
3.1	Re-Writing the Sexual Body: The Medicalization of the Erotic Flesh	123
3.1.1	Penal Sickness: Predicting the Consequences of Erotic Embodiment	125
3.1.2	The Sexual Body Erased: Replacing the Erotic With Disease	127

3.2	The Maternal Substitute: From the Sexual Body to the Reproductive Body	131
3.2.1	The Physiology of Reproduction: Motherhood and the Absence of Pleasure-Spots	131
3.2.2	Approaching the Postmodern: Southern Visions of Artificial Reproduction	134
3.2.3	The Soul Gardener: Moral Duties of Social Reproduction	137
3.2.4	The Decline of the „Natural“: The Medicalization of Childbirth	139
3.3	Cultural Writings of Absent Sexuality: Southern Moral Discourse and Denials of the White Flesh	142
3.3.1	The Making of the Perverse: Sex as a Mental Passion	142
3.3.2	Male White Sexual Bodies: The Spermatic Economy	148
3.3.3	The Moral Double Standard: Social Niches for Bodily Pleasure	152
3.3.4	African Eroticism in the White Mind: The Making of Black Sexual Bodies	156
3.3.4.1	„By Night as Well as Day“: Eroticizing Female Black Nudity	156
3.3.4.2	Well Endowed No-Men: Black Male Omnipotence in the Absence of Manhood	160
4.	The Disciplined Body	167
4.1	The Socio-Cultural Concern for the Interior Body: The Supremacy of Absence	167
4.1.1	„A Passion Dangerous to Health and Morals“: The Southern Anti-Dancing Crusade	167
4.1.2	Moral Politics of Manly Restraint: The Southern Temperance Movement	169
4.1.3	Acting Out Emotions: War and Sports as Male Preserves of Legitimate Embodiment?	173
4.2	The Religious Body: Soul Over Matter?	178
4.2.1	Of Useless Containers and Precious Souls: The Devaluation of the Flesh	178
4.2.2	Southern Salvation Theories: Doctrinal Indifference to the Body of Sin	179
4.2.3	The Black Religious Body: Scriptural Legitimizations of Slavery	182
4.2.4	Sinners, Souls, and the Politics of Salvation: The Southern Debate on the Black Soul	183
4.2.5	Uncommon Calls for Fleshlessness: Religious Quests for Black Restraint	189
4.2.6	Bodies That Do Not Matter: Taking the Pride out of Black Corporeality	193
4.2.6.1	Meaningless Tropes: The Irrelevance of the Muscular and the Aesthetic	194
4.2.6.2	The Uselessness of Suffering: Bodiless Salvation	196
4.2.7	Bodies Despite a Soul: Disembodied Happiness as a Postmortem Privilege	201

4.2.8	The Impossibility of Transcending the Flesh: Bodiless Bodies	202
5.	The Mirroring Body	207
5.1	A Culinary Homo Duplex: Food Discourse and the Concern for Visible Desires	207
5.2	Feeding the Exterior Body: Upper-Class Displays of Cultural Experience	209
5.3	Eating like Pigs or Starving Like Dogs: Hungers of the Black Flesh	213
5.4	Black Bodies and White Culture: Edible Labor and Aristocratic Dining	216
5.5	Manners and Etiquette: The White Cultural Politics of Bodiless Representation	217
5.6	Beauty and the Fashionable Body: Consumerist Confirmations of Purity & Class	218
5.6.1	Spiritual Beauty: The Beautiful Soul	219
5.6.1.1	A Physiological Hierarchy of Beauty: Expressive Organs of the Soul	221
5.6.1.2	Of Virgin Mothers and Angels: Allegoric Bodies as Archetypes of Pure Beauty	224
5.6.2	Surface Beauty: The Beautiful (No-)Body	226
5.6.2.1	Squeezing Away Body Matter: Tight Lacing	228
5.6.2.2	Cloaking the Body: Masking Corporeality	230
5.6.2.3	Deconstructing the Body: Cultural Encodings of the Flesh	231
5.6.2.4	Uneasy Bodies: Deconstruction, Compensation, and the Mock Soul	233
5.7	Souls and Minds vs. The Body: The Southern Crusade Against Surface Beauty	234
5.8	Unthinkable Aesthetics: Southern Body Talk and the Exclusion of Black Beauty	242
5.9	Male White Fashion: The Unmaking of Individual Corporality	246
5.9.1	The White Fashionable No-Man: The Dandy's Body	246
5.9.2	Public Bodies: The Fashion of Men Condoned	248
6.	Concluding Body Making: Southern Hierarchy of Embodiment Summarized	253
	PART THREE: Southern White Body-Texts and Their Body-Political Function	255
7.	Foucauldian Foundations: The Power Knowledge Effect and the Regulative Effect of Discourse	255
8.	The White No-Body in the Antebellum South: Absence as Social Function	256
8.1	The Medical Body	257
8.2	The Sexual Body	261
8.3	The Disciplined Body	269
8.4	The Mirroring Body	277

9.	From Body-Talk to Social Practice: The Body-Politics of Corporal Absentiism	285
9.1	Regulative Awareness: Southern Body-Texts as Acknowledged Tools of Social Control	287
9.2	The Infrastructure of Body-Politics: Institutions, Disciplines and Micropowers	291
9.2.1	The Medical Body	292
9.2.2	The Sexual Body	294
9.2.3	The Disciplined Body	295
9.2.4	The Mirroring Body	298
9.3	Regulative Fleshlessness in Southern Body-Political Practice: Did it Really Work?	300
9.3.1	The Medical Body	300
9.3.2	The Sexual Body	306
9.3.3	The Disciplined Body	317
9.3.4	The Mirroring Body	322
10.	Naming White Body Politics: „Bio-Politics“ as a Modern Affair of the Soul	337
	PART FOUR: Southern Texts of Blackness and Their Body-Political Function	341
11.	White Tropes of Fleishy Blackness: The Function of Black Hypercorporeality	341
11.1	The Medical Body	341
11.2	The Sexual Body	346
11.3	The Mirroring Body	349
12.	Functional Bodies and Dysfunctional Modes of Control: The Black Flesh and the Failure of Bio-Political Regulation	351
13.	The Apologetic Function of Discourse: Body-Texts and the Non-Regulative Intention	356
14.	The Black Body and Religion: An Attempt at Bio-Political Control	359
14.1	From the Fear of God to the Panoptic State: The Controlling Gaze Enters the Black Subject	362
14.2	Socio-Religious Micropowers: Spreading the Regulative Doctrines of Christianity	366
14.3	Black Bodiless Regulation Rejected: The Failure of the Bio-Political Experiment	367
14.4	Reasons for Failure: The Lack of Micropowers, Supremacy of Labor, Dysfunctional Body-Texts, and Fears of Equality	371

15.	The Afflicted Black Body as The Medium of Regulation: Pre-Modern Power in a Modern World	381
16.	Prohibitive Politics of Suppression: Despotism Subjections of the Black Flesh	382
	16.1 The Medical Body	382
	16.2 The Sexual Body	388
	16.3 The Disciplined Body	397
	16.4 The Mirroring Body	400
17.	The Savage Spectacle: The Black Penal Body as a Stage for Power Display	409
	17.1 Restoring Asymmetry: The Meaning of Corporal Infliction	412
	17.2 Inescapable Texts: The Body as Lasting Sign	415
18.	The Declining Importance of the Flesh: Penal Reform in America	417
	18.1 Calls for Bodilessness: The Crusade for Penal Disembodiment	417
	18.2 Mind over Matter: Southern Penal Reform and the Change of Objective	429
19.	Outside Southern Penal Reform: Black Bodies in Pain	434
20.	Perpetuating Racial Hierarchies of Embodiment: Penal Reform, Black Bodies, White Souls	439
	PART FIVE: The Body-Political Ineffectiveness of Despotism Embodiment	443
21.	Paying The Prize for Anachronism: The Problems of Pre-Modern Subjugation	443
	21.1 Politics of Disallowance: The Inefficiency of Despotism Control	443
	21.2 The Impossibility of Omnipresent Surveillance: Absent Technologies of Power	445
	21.3 Animalizing the „Civilized“: Pre-Modern Power and the Dangers to White Claims for Superiority	447
	21.4 Expensive Bodies: Economic and Social Costs of Physical Regulation	454
	21.5 The Cost of Life: The Black Body as the Seat of Physical Resistance	457
22.	No Future: Sensing the Breakdown of Despotism	462
	Conclusion	471
	Epilogue Cyborgs, Love Machines, and the Social Realities of Body-Visions	483
	Appendix Less Embodied Minds: Moral Treatment of the White „Insane“ in the Old South	489
	Bibliography	493