

CONTENTS

Preface ix

Abbreviations xi

Introduction by Guenther Roth xv

Chapter I. Introduction 1

Chapter II. Weber's Historical Problem 6
The Distinctiveness of Western Capitalism 6
The Distinctiveness of Western Rationalism 9

Chapter III. The Philosophical Background of Weber's Developmental History 13
The Relation to Neo-Kantian Value Theory 13
Value Theory as a Theory of Value Conflict 19

Chapter IV. The Substantive Content of Weber's Developmental History 25
A. Presuppositions and Basic Concepts 25
Value-Spheres and Institutional Realms 25
Levels and Dimensions of Social Relations 30
B. Basic Configurations of Social Order 39
1. The Ethical Component 39
Typology of Ethics 39
Ethics and the Idea of Compensation 48
Ethics and Types of Conscience 59
Revised Typology of Ethics 62
Questionable Classifications: Confucianism and Judaism 67
2. The Institutional Component 70
Typology of Differentiation 70
Classes and Status Groups 78

Chapter V. Types of Law and Types of Domination 82

1. The Relation Between the Sociology of Domination and of Law 82
2. The Sociology of Law 87
 - Types of Law 87
 - Formal Modes of Law 89
 - Substantive Modes of Law 97
 - The Differentiation of the Substantive Fields of Law 99
 - The Relation of Ethics and Law 101
3. The Sociology of Domination 106
 - Traditional Domination: The Guiding Principle of Personal Loyalty 106
 - Rational Domination: The Guiding Principle of Legality 107
 - Traditional and Rational Domination Compared 118
 - Charismatic Domination: The Mission as Guiding Principle 121
 - The Sociology of Domination Reconstructed 126
4. Sociology of Domination and Typology of Action 128
5. Preliminary Conclusion 133

Chapter VI. The Role of the Reformation in the Transition to Modernity 139

- Methodological Aspects of the Sociology of Religion 139
- The Analysis of the Breakthrough in the Study of Ascetic Protestantism 141
- The Analysis of the Breakthrough in the Comparative Studies of Religion and Economy 148
- The Cultural Significance of Christianity: A Comparison of the World Religions 156
- The Cultural Significance of Ascetic Protestantism:
A Comparison of Salvation Movements During the Reformation 166

Chapter VII. Conclusion 175

Index 177