

Contents

Introduction .....	9
1 Research into Religion in China Today: the Discursive Field .....	18
2 Belief and Political Power in China .....	28
3 Definitions of Belief and Religion, Popular Forms of Belief, and Popular Religion by Chinese Participants in Discourse .....	38
3.1 Marxist perspectives on belief and religion .....	38
3.2 Various types of belief: political, national, cultural, religious, scientific .....	48
3.3 Patriotism as 'quasi-religion' .....	54
3.4 Belief as a 'form of knowledge' or a core structure of culture ....	55
3.5 Popular belief belongs to the sphere of 'sub-culture' or 'crypto-culture' .....	56
3.6 Is popular belief a religion? Different lines of discourse in China.....	57
3.7 Re. the classification of popular belief "it is better to lean to the side of vagueness than to the side of over-precision" .....	61
3.8 "The question of popular belief will make possible a unique perspective on the traditional society of China" .....	64
3.9 The dangers of the politicization of belief and of a connection of belief with political power.....	70
3.10 The distinction between 'elite culture' and 'popular culture' .....	72
4 Discursive Thread About Indigeneity and the Critical Engagement with Western Research Approaches .....	77
5 Popular Belief in Social Context.....	86
6 Discursive Strategies for the Legitimation of Popular Belief and for Scientific Engagement with Popular Belief .....	104
7 Proposals and Demands Derived from the Discursive Threads Reviewed, Along With Experiments.....	120
Conclusions .....	131

List of discourse participants.....	149
Selected Bibliography .....	155