

Thörn provides the first comparative analysis of different sections of the transnational anti-apartheid movement. Analyzing part of the 20th post-war history mainly from a sociological perspective this book also highlights dimensions of globalization in an era in which we still live; the power of the media; and the power of collective action.